President Caldwell’s Visit
Mr. Michael Gillies is GMC Warner Robins’s new Assistant Professor of Art. He teaches Art Appreciation and Studio Art. Mr. Gillies describes his teaching style as very open, yet centered on discussions of visual Art, Art History and the role of the Arts in our culture. The students who decide to take Mr. Gillies should know that he is an advocate for the Arts at all levels and is interested in helping students at GMC achieve their goals. Mr. Gillies has been an adjunct professor at GMC-WR for nearly three years, and was given the opportunity to go full-time during the summer of 2015. He acknowledges the Warner Robins campus as a progressive campus that embraces growth and student development at a high level. He enjoys working in the Humanities department where he is surrounded by a blend of dedicated professionals excited about the Arts.

His inspiration came from one of his professors named Dale Leys, whose ability to design a space using spatial concepts intrigued Mr. Gillies with Mr. Leys’ rigid instructional practice. Another source of his inspiration derives from a philosophy of the Abstract Expressionists and artworks that use nature as the basis of their work. In his own work, he is inspired by nature and man’s attempt to understand his own nature through biblical scripture, narrative Art, and Art history. You can find his artwork and some of his student’s work by searching www.mikegillies.com.

Mr. Gillies’s received his MFA degree in Painting and Drawing Studio at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana and a BFA in Art Education & Painting Studio from Murray State University in Murray, Kentucky. Outside of teaching, his greatest joy is spending time with his son, Thomas (age 10) and watching him grow into a fine young man. His hobbies consist of trying different types of coffees, studying new and emerging artists, and experimental techniques associated with art making.
CHRISTOPHER MUNN

I had the privilege of earning my associates in Business Administration from GMC-Warner Robins back in 2009. GMC was a great transition from high school as it provided small class sizes and an environment that encouraged student dialogue with instructors, which paved the way for increased learning. I can honestly say that during my two years attending GMC, I experienced more growth as an individual than I ever expected. The encouragement I received from my teachers motivated, inspired and fostered a desire to strive for excellence inside the classroom and beyond. After completing my degree at GMC, I transferred to a four-year college to earn my bachelor’s in business, with a concentration in marketing. Transitioning from the quarter to semester system was seamless. However, after experiencing both systems, I definitely preferred the eight-week quarter as I enjoyed the high level of assignments and tasks that I believe cultivated the most growth in my college career. Upon completion of my bachelor’s degree, I, along with my brother, Jonathan, started a filmmaking business full-time. I have very fond memories of my years at GMC. The confidence that Georgia Military College instilled within myself to pursue my dreams continues to this day.

JONATHAN MUNN

Choosing to attend Georgia Military College for the first two years of my education was the best decision I could have made to start my college career. I look back and value the time I spent learning at GMC, not realizing then, a foundation was being laid for my life. This foundation of applying myself, working hard, studying, gaining knowledge and perspective from professors, collaborating with other students, and upholding my character, was pivotal to my success at Georgia Military College. After two years of hard work, I felt even more prepared to earn my bachelor’s degree in Information Technology. Above all, what I gained from my experience at GMC is that working hard, maintaining character, and applying myself will always be met with success. This foundation was laid in my life as a student. And today, as a small business owner, the same foundation has contributed to my success as an entrepreneur, partner, and filmmaker in Munn Brothers Films.

TESS HARPER

My experience at GMC-Warner Robins prepared me well for my transition to Mercer University where I received a degree in Journalism and Media Studies, as well as my career in public relations for Georgia’s School Nutrition Program.

I would sum up my one year at GMC with the word “community.” The smaller class sizes taught me invaluable interpersonal skills, provided hands-on learning and created a sense of community with my professors and fellow peers. Those experiences now serve as the driving force behind so much of what I do in both my professional and personal life today.
