Bill Craig’s leadership of the GMC Foundation was electric, visionary, and untried. I met Bill almost immediately after coming to GMC almost twenty years ago. It was he who spent days trying to help Kathy and me find a place to live when we first arrived in Milledgeville. He was a cocky youngster back then, albeit possessing the same formidable qualities of wit and intelligence that grew as he aged over the years. He matured into a graceful, articulate, thoughtful, and visionary gentleman and leader who I would follow even in the more dire circumstances I have faced over my own lifetime. He loved this institution and his passing leaves a void in the lives of the many he touched. He was a friend…with all that connotes.

The Foundation is fortunate to have an extraordinarily talented individual who is assuming leadership of the Foundation.” Dudley Rowe demonstrated his brilliance in the corporate world and, with his work in the Foundation, he has continued to display the same qualities of leadership, vision, and dedication that so identified Bill Craig. We are fortunate to have a person of his competence in all venues continue and expand the initiatives that are underway.

The institution continues to prosper and has undertaken significant steps to improve the curriculum and the way we do our business. The purchase of new software, although costly, will provide a return on investment in recruiting and retention of all students…cadets and commuters…as well as in other areas of management. Too, this investment will allow us to initiate on-line courses which we anticipate will significantly add to our student population. A “First Year Experience” initiative has been created which will have the effect of vastly improving the integration of first-time students into the college…which, too, will have a positive impact on retention and, of course, learning.

We are grateful for the continuing support of alumni and friends and hope to see you at Alumni Weekend. You make a difference!

Ethics Endowment that confronts us nationally. If we can stem the tide of campus crime and student unethical behavior, we believe that establishing effective character development programs for students is so very important. “Character must be imparted solely through academic classes or codes of behavior. Ethics must be infused into the way students learn, the way they interact with one another and with their environment, and the way they think about themselves.”

At GMC we share the sense of urgency felt by many who believe that establishing effective character development programs in our schools is an essential step that must be taken before we can stem the tide of campus crime and student unethical behavior that confronts us nationally.

For ethics education to have a meaningful effect, it cannot be imparted solely through academic classes or codes of behavior. Ethics must be infused into the way students learn, the way they interact with one another and with their environment, and the way they think about themselves.

Loyalty, leadership, and generosity....

In Memory of William R. “Bill” Craig, HS 1971

As a French writer and philosopher Denis Diderot penned, “Only passions, great passions, can elevate the soul to great things.”

Georgia Military College lost one of its own: a dear friend, leader and alum, William R. “Bill” Craig (HS 1971). A passionate fighter throughout his life, he lost his battle with cancer, surrounded by loved ones on February 2 of this year.

Bill elevated the souls of many. This is apparent in the achievements of his wife, Patsy and their two sons, Will and Zach; on the baseball field that bears his name on GMC’s main campus; and with the many men and women who are honored to have called Bill family, friend, mentor, and associate.

“I have known Bill for almost twenty years. He made things happen,” said GMC President MG Peter Boylan. “He was a graceful, articulate, thoughtful, visionary gentleman and leader who I would follow even in the more dire circumstances I have faced during my own lifetime because I knew he would always win at whatever he attacked.”

Dr. George L. Echols remarked, “Bill Craig will forever be remembered as a gentleman of the first order. He was truly dedicated to his wife and children, his brothers and sister, and to so many in his community who knew and loved him. Always the faithful servant, he practiced the attributes of his Christian upbringing. Also significant was his loyalty, leadership, and generosity toward Georgia Military College. He made things happen! I am extremely proud to have been his friend, and will always be grateful for that friendship.”

A lifelong resident of Milledgeville and graduate of Georgia College, Bill co-founded Craig-Massee Realty, in business since 1998. In 1985 and the GMC Service Award presented in 2000. His efforts did not go unnoticed. He received many awards throughout his life, including the Outstanding Recent Alumni Award from Georgia College in 1985 and the GMC Service Award in 1998.

“Bill Craig made a difference with his life… something we all hope to accomplish. A difference that will be felt over the many years yet in the future. A difference in his family, his friends, this community, and, of course, at Georgia Military College.”

As MG Boylan eulogized, “Bill Craig made a difference with his life… something we all hope to accomplish. A difference that will be felt over the many years yet in the future. A difference in his family, his friends, this community, and, of course, at Georgia Military College.”

If you would like to honor the memory of Bill, the family has requested that memorial gifts be made toward the William R. “Bill” Craig Scholarship Fund for the benefit of GMC Prep School students.

A Cadet and His Story

Jimmy Williams HS 1945, JC 1946

The gates of GMC have seen many young people arrive and then leave to follow their life’s paths, carrying with them the tools to make the decisions that will shape their futures. Jimmy Williams arrived at GMC’s gates in 1941. Vinson Hall, where he lived almost his entire time at GMC, and the junior college building (later known as Whitfield Hall) had both recently opened, and the capitol building had recently burned, severely damaging the interior. The current parade ground was a grassy meadow, and Mrs. Roach’s (wife of a former GMC President) rock garden and gold fish pond stood at the corner nearest Davenport Field.

His family had left Miami because his father, who was a reservist, had been called to active duty at Camp Wheeler in Macon. The family moved to Macon, and Jimmy attended school there through seventh grade.

COL Muldrow, a professor from GMC who was then the commander at Camp Wheeler, through encouraging Jimmy’s dad, got Jimmy into GMC. However, Jimmy never saw Muldrow again until after the war when he returned to complete his final quarter. When Jimmy got back on campus, he ran into COL Muldrow, who was by then teaching at GMC again. Asked Muldrow, “Jimmy, you still here?”

Jimmy had the one quarter remaining at GMC because he wanted men who will come if there is no road at all.”

David Lovinshtine

“if you have men who will only come if they know there is a good road, I don’t want them. I want men who will come if there is no road at all.”

After coming back to Milledgeville and completing the last quarter at GMC, Jimmy returned to Miami. He could have commissioned then but would have had to serve two more years with no guarantee of a regular commission, so instead, he enrolled in college at the University of Miami.

Jimmy’s father was still in the service, having also served during WWII, and by 1948 he was the Inspector General of the Berlin Airlift, the largest humanitarian operation ever undertaken by the Air Force. One day Jimmy got a long distance phone call from his dad who told him he wanted to see him in Germany. Williams shared, “If my dad told you to do something, that’s what you did - so I went to Germany.” He began working for the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES), at the PX gas station in Wiesbaden, and actually flew several times in the airlift as the “cookie boy” taking sweets to the Germans in an operation that ultimately came to be known as Operation Little Vittles, which delivered tons of treats to children all over West Berlin.

In 1956, after actually having to resign and be rehired, Jimmy went to New York and moved into retail as a retail input technician. This position required him to visit every retail location in the country. In 1957, he finally got to Atlanta as a tech rep for the nine state southeastern region after telling a manager, “I’m a real Southern boy!”

Jimmy met his wife of 58 years, Margaret, working at one of the stores in Wiesbaden, Germany. Jimmy and Margaret were married in Germany in 1958, and then after Margaret came over to the U.S., also in 1958, she and Jimmy remarried in January, 1959 in Orlando, Florida. In 1961 things started to really happen quickly.

Jimmy became the General Manager of the Keesler Air Force Base Exchange. Then in 1965 he transferred back to Atlanta as Chief of Region, where he stayed until Christmas of 1967 when he moved to Dallas, Texas as the Executive Director of Personnel. In 1970 he headed back to Munich, Germany as Director of Stores and Merchandising with over 700 outlets in Germany serving over 600,000 service people in Europe. Salted in with the regular duties of his position in Germany, Jimmy also traveled to many other countries - Turkey, Libya, Egypt, Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, just to name a few - taking in supplies and often traveling with a general.

He stayed in the director’s position until the end of 1974 when he retired, and he and Margaret moved back to Miami. With one daughter in college and two school-aged daughters, whose education was a priority, they decided to look for other possible locations to live. While traveling by motor home all over the southeast, they visited Georgia, and after looking around in Atlanta, Jimmy and Margaret decided to move back there to live. Once the children were grown, however, they decided to sell the house, opting for a smaller townhouse instead as home base, and traveled all over the country and the world. Years later, as they slowed down, they landed in Rome, Georgia, where one of their daughters lives.

Williams’ memories of GMC have stayed tucked in tight, like the football in the games he played for Lou Cordell and others. And he has carried these memories with him through all that he has done in life. Friendships, formed “back in the day” during escapades like borrowing a cow one dark night from a local home place and then “encouraging” her to climb the stairs to be “marmotized,” in the Commander’s office in the Old Capitol Building to then be discovered the next morning, remain tight, too. Though not in the same towns now, frequent telephone contact keeps the old friends all together.

Williams summed it all up in one simple sentence, “I was a GMC Cadet then, and I still am.” For him, what he learned at GMC carried him through all his life’s adventures and still does to this day.

“All of life is a journey - which paths we take, what we look back on, and what we look forward to is up to us. We determine our destination, what kind of road we will take to get there, and how happy we are when we get there.”

The ideas and recommendations resulting from this session were based on limited and rapidly changing information. The recommendations were made for miner health and well-being concerning their air, water, hygiene, communications, bedding, empowering/informing activities, support devices, and supply chain modeling. They were delivered to the Chilean government as the rescue operation and systems were just beginning to be formulated. The NESC team lead was a member of the four-person NASA team that departed for Chile soon after the initial recommendations were communicated to provide on-site support. Finally, NESC personnel led a team of approximately 22 engineers and scientists who developed and documented the recommended requirements for the design of the Chilean miner rescue system. NESC engineers and NASA medical personnel produced the requirements in less than three days. While NASA does not have significant expertise in mining-related matters, NASA does have extensive experience in defining requirements, designing unique vehicles, and caring for individuals who are exposed to harsh environments. The overall miner rescue system was comprised of several components, including the rescue capsule – dubbed the “Phoenix,” hoist system, communications devices, and miner protective equipment.

Last August, what was on the minds of many of us was the extreme heat, the nearing end of summer, getting kids back to school, the upcoming football season — all the day to day things that make everyday life go ‘round. But, thousands of miles away in another hemisphere, a tragedy and a miracle were about to play themselves out high in the desert mountains of northern Chile.

The collapse of a gold and copper mine trapped 33 miners more than 2,000 feet below the mine entrance, and the watching world held its collective breath for their safety. After an intensive seventeen-day search effort, when a drill bit chewed a narrow hole from the surface all the way to the roof of the mine, all 33 miners were discovered alive, trapped in an emergency area where they had gathered to prepare for lunch. Then began the monumental task of rescuing them. This narrow hole would be the miners’ connection to the world above for the next eight weeks, a lifeline rescuers used to lower food and medicine until they could excavate an escape shaft and hoist the 33 to freedom.

Onto this worldwide stage, several days after the miners were located alive, steps NASA, at the request of the Chilean Space Agency, to provide technical advice. The day after the support was requested, the NASA Engineering and Support Center (NESC) personnel supported an agency-wide brainstorming session to identify initial ideas to assist the 33 miners trapped in the San Jose mine. The ideas and recommendations resulting from this session were based on limited and rapidly changing information. The recommendations were made for miner health and well-being concerning their air, water, hygiene, communications, bedding, empowering/informing activities, support devices, and supply chain modeling. They were delivered to the Chilean government as the rescue operation and systems were just beginning to be formulated. The NESC team lead was a member of the four-person NASA team that departed for Chile soon after the initial recommendations were communicated to provide on-site support. Finally, NESC personnel led a team of approximately 22 engineers and scientists who developed and documented the recommended requirements for the design of the Chilean miner rescue system. NESC engineers and NASA medical personnel produced the requirements in less than three days. While NASA does not have significant expertise in mining-related matters, NASA does have extensive experience in defining requirements, designing unique vehicles, and caring for individuals who are exposed to harsh environments. The overall miner rescue system was comprised of several components, including the rescue capsule – dubbed the “Phoenix,” hoist system, communications devices, and miner protective equipment.

Thanks to the support and technology provided by the NESC, on October 13, all 33 miners were successfully rescued. They are believed to have survived longer underground than anyone else in the history of mining accidents.

Dr. William “Bill” H. Prosser (HS 1980) was a member of this NESC team, and for his work received a personal letter of commendation, as did all the rescue vehicle team members, from United States Senator Mark R. Warner from Virginia. In the letter, Senator Warner stated, “We in Virginia were proud to hear of your contributions to the rescue capsule and the part you played in a terrific ending to the long and trying ordeal. The successful rescue of the miners was a testament to the American spirit of ingenuity, a spirit exemplified by the NESC team at NASA Langley.” Senator Warren also made a personal visit to present a flag to the team that worked on the Chilean miner rescue vehicle. The flag had been flown over the capitol on the day that the miner rescue operations started.

In the U.S. House of Representatives, Ms. Eddie Bernice Johnson of Texas submitted a resolution that was passed, which included recognizing “…that the experience and knowledge NASA has acquired through space flight is beneficial to human life on Earth and was critical to the successful rescue of the Chilean miners.”

Dr. Prosser was the GMC Distinguished Alumnus Award recipient in 2009. He and his wife, Karen, live in Poquoson, Virginia with their two children, Drew and Kayla.

Rescue workers practice a dry run with one of the capsules that will be used to rescue the trapped miners.

The Georgia Military College Steinway Concert Series presents
“Keys to the Heart,” starring The David Osborne Trio on Friday, May 13 at 7:00 p.m. in the Goldstein Center for the Performing Arts.

Miami Oklahoma native David Osborne has been playing the piano since he was five years old. He is a distinguished member of the international roster of Steinway Artists. Osborne’s frequency of playing for present and past presidents has earned him the title of “Pianist to the Presidents.” He has played in the White House and throughout the country for presidents Carter, Bush, Reagan, Clinton and Obama, as well as a host of dignitaries and celebrities.

Osborne utilizes his classical study and technique to execute flawless performances of Broadway, romantic, classical and ageless standards of the American song book. He combines his technique with his love for the piano and music to unlock the “Keys to the Heart.” His touch and feel for romantic love songs has created a style that is unique only to him, and has earned him the title “Master of the Romantic Piano.”

A few of Osborne’s more significant recent events include a concert for the American Breast Cancer Awareness Foundation, an interview and performance on TV’s “The 700 Club,” a concert for the Steinway and Sons International Convention of Worldwide Dealers at the Beverly Hills Hotel, a benefit concert at the Eastman Scholl of Music in Rochester, N.Y., and a performance in Las Vegas, playing the Steinway pianos of Vladimir Horowitz, Van Cliburn and George Gershwin at Southern Nevada Music as part of Steinway & Sons Legendary Instruments of the Immortals Tour.

Following the concert, guests will be invited to enjoy an outdoor reception on Grant Parade.

Tickets, $10 for general admission and $5 for students, may be purchased in advance at the GMC Office of Advancement, 431 South Jefferson Street, or at the door on the evening of the performance. For more information, call the GMC Office of Advancement at (478) 387-4840.
Georgia Military College Foundation Appoints Leaders

The Georgia Military College Foundation recently announced its appointment of trustees to serve in roles of leadership for the organization.

The Foundation’s trademark in recent years has been incremental success on behalf of Georgia Military College. These leaders have pledged their dedicated service toward ensuring continued excellence and fortifying the institution for a productive future.

Mr. Dudley Rowe has been appointed as Chairman of the Georgia Military College Foundation. He has been instrumental in organizing a grants program for the Foundation and providing invaluable leadership to the organization at a strategic level.

Rowe, an Honorary Alumnus, became involved with GMC some 20 years ago and says that the experience has been quite rewarding. He stated, “I am involved with Georgia Military College because of my deep conviction that the educational experience it offers makes a profound and lasting impact upon the lives of its students.”

Born and raised in southwestern England, Rowe enjoyed a 45-year career with ECC PLC, a large British international minerals and chemicals company. Before his retirement as a senior executive, he was promoted to Executive Vice President and served on the parent company board of directors. He has since served in leadership on many business, professional, and civic boards and committees around the world.

Rowe has served as a director of Century Bank & Trust since 2001 and as a Century Bancorp director since 2002. He is currently Chairman of the Board of Century Bancorp and is a past Senior Warden of Saint Stephens Episcopal Church.

Dr. John Ferguson will serve as 1st Vice Chairman and Chairman of the Development Committee. A graduate of GMC (high school and junior college), Ferguson attended the Emory University School of Dentistry and was accepted at Emory as a resident in orthodontics after serving in the U.S. Army Dental Corp. Upon completing his residency, he began his practice in his hometown of Milledgeville.

Ferguson was inducted as a Fellow of the International College of Dentists and received the John E. MacNamara D.D.S. Meritorious Service Award from Emory University. He has been named Distinguished Alumnus at Georgia Military College.

Ferguson is active in the community and in his church, and holds memberships in a number of civic organizations. His service includes being president of the GMC Alumni Association, GMC Foundation Trustee, and advisor to the GMC Board of Trustees.

Mr. John Williamson will serve as 2nd Vice Chairman. Now retired, Williamson was president of Freeport Kaolin Company and president of IMPEX Corporation, an International Engineering, Consultant, Manufacturing and Sales Corporation servicing the industrial minerals field worldwide. He has performed engineering, consulting, and sales to more than 35 domestic and foreign companies.

Williamson graduated from North Georgia College and, after serving in the U.S. Naval Air Reserve, earned a B.S. degree in Industrial Engineering at Georgia Institute of Technology.

Williamson is a member of the Georgia Tech National Advisory Board (emeritus), the Georgia Mining Association and the Georgia College Foundation Board. He is a past member of the Board of Directors of the Georgia Business Council and the Advisory Boards for the School of Management at the University of Georgia and the School of Business at Georgia College.

Mr. David Grant will hold the office of Secretary-Treasurer. A graduate of GMC (high school and junior college), Grant has served his alma mater not only as a trustee of the GMC Foundation but also as past president of the Alumni Association and past member of the Board of Trustees. He has a B.B.A. from Georgia College.

Grant has contributed a great deal to numerous civic organizations and has given outstanding service to the community. He has received the GMC Alumni Association’s Community Service Award as a result of his vision of what needs to be accomplished and his dedication to improving the lives of others.

Grant is employed with James M. Grant, CPA, in Milledgeville. He is President of Oconee River Greenway Foundation, Inc. and serves on the Board of Directors of the Oconee Area Citizen Advocacy, Inc.

The four officers are members of an Executive Committee elected from the membership of the board which meets monthly to consider policy and management issues and is authorized to act on behalf of the Foundation Board of Trustees within its semi-annual meetings. The mission of the Georgia Military College Foundation is to secure and prudently manage private gifts in support of Georgia Military College and foster a culture that unites philanthropic desires with college priorities. The Foundation is a separate, independent organization that is chartered by the State of Georgia as a 501(c)(3) nonprofit educational corporation.
“Unforgettable memories ... Unprecedented futures,” the theme of the 2010 event, proved to be an appropriate one as returning alumni shared old memories and made new ones while marveling at the continuing improvements that keep the campus moving positively into the future. Alumni Weekend is also about traditions, which are an important part and parcel of coming back to campus, so, true to that credo, many events are carried forward year to year so that a sense of constancy is also maintained.

This year’s activities got underway with a Thursday evening ribbon cutting at the Old Capital Museum for the new fall exhibit, “King Cotton – The Common Thread.” Museum staff and board members were on hand to visit with alumni and to talk about the new exhibit as well as the museum overall.

Friday morning brought out the early risers for a friendly competition waged on the greens and fairways of the Milledgeville Country Club as well as in the spirited conversations held in the golf carts as they sped along the way. This year’s winning team, coming in at 12 under par with a score of 59, included Louie Sanders, Royce Sanders, Ryan Stillman, and Charles Wilcher.

During the afternoon alumni could enjoy tours of buildings on campus, the highlight of which this year was the newly-opened Usery Hall, now the home of GMC’s prep school. Each year those returning alumni who have not been back to campus since they left as graduates, or at least for many years, are always amazed at what they see. In fact, one alumnus this year confided that he actually felt lost and had to orient himself with the Old Capitol Building to remind himself of where things had been.
Late afternoon found everyone gathered for the traditional parade, which always includes the formation and march of the alumni platoon. After enjoying the 132nd Corps of Cadets on Grant Parade, musical numbers by the GMC Prep School band, and comments by Judge William Moore, the crowd moved down to South Gate and main tent for a tailgate party. The meal included barbeque and all the fixins’ catered by Satterfield’s of Macon, musical entertainment by “Duke” Elton, and plenty of reminiscing and storytelling.

Afterward, alumni either attended the GMC Prep School football game against Lakeview Academy or enjoyed Mac Frampton and The Three Penny Symphony in concert. For concert attendees, a “Coffee and Dessert Intermezzo” catered by The Loper Brothers, was provided under main tent to finish out the evening’s events.

Saturday morning found new arrivals at registration and those who already had arrived back on campus to enjoy tours that they might have missed on Friday or just to catch up with old friends and classmates before attending the alumni awards reception, lunch, and program. The Willis House of Milledgeville provided a tasty buffet lunch, while the Monty Cole Quintet entertained before the awards program.

Saturday afternoon was then open for wandering through campus, visiting buildings not yet seen, reunion groups getting together, or taking in the local Deep Roots Festival activities going on downtown. Late afternoon offered a wine and cheese reception in the Old Capitol Building Rotunda, catered by Southern Affairs of Milledgeville, making your plans now!!

and the opportunity to get an update on the “State of the School” from MG Peter Boylan before moving back under the tent to enjoy the weekend’s finale, the dinner/dance. A delicious steak dinner was provided by Will Jarriel’s Catering of Milledgeville before alumni put on their dancing shoes and hit the dance floor to the music of The Grapevine. In between dances, alumni were talking, laughing, and already making plans for next year’s event, including who needed to be called for reunions. This night never ends on goodbyes but instead on, “We’ll see you next year.”

The date for Alumni Weekend 2011 has been set for October 21 and 22. For information you may contact Earlene Hamilton at ehamilton@gmc.cc.ga.us or at 478-387-4881. The alumni events section of the GMC web site, www.gmc.cc.ga.us, will be updated as details are finalized.
2010 — On the Road Again for Band Company

They did it again! Band Company reunion organizers and mainstays, Terry Johnson and Cliff Owdom, struck out last year in advance of the 2010 Alumni Weekend to personally touch the lives of those they knew and remembered from their GMC days and to encourage them to return to this place of special memories and gather with other returning alumni to meet, greet, and reminisce.

This year’s trip found them headed north with the first stop planned to be in Hartwell to see Jack Lyle (JC 1962). Part of the success of these trips is to appear unexpectedly, not making appointments ahead, but unfortunately, that approach has its own shortcomings, too. Jack was headed out of town so the “ambassadors” rolled on to Athens and had a great visit with Donald Whitehead (HS 1962) from Band Company, whom neither Cliff nor Terry had seen in 48 years!

They “bunked over” in Gainesville the first night out with plans to meet Al Blackburn (JC 1963) for breakfast, but this was apparently to be the year for misadventures because Al also was unable to keep the “date” - even though they had actually called ahead on this one. Not to be dissuaded from their mission, however, they continued on with spirits high.

The next stop was in a little town called Armuchee where they met with Chip Limbrick (JC 1963), Band Company, whom they also had not seen in 48 years. They spent about two hours visiting with Chip, and though he and his wife were already committed to a trip that conflicted with the 2010 Alumni Weekend, he told the “ambassadors” he would definitely plan to be at the 2011 reunion. Terry said, “If I had met Chip on the street, I would have never have recognized him—he has less hair than me!” (The traveling ambassadors “ambassadors” he would definitely plan to be at the 2011 reunion. Terry said, “If I had met Chip on the street, I would have never have recognized him—he has less hair than me!” (The traveling ambassadors were asked to leave one of the nicest restaurants in Macon. Dinner together. Terry cautioned, “If you ever go to Macon, Georgia and run into a man by the name of Richard Norman Bates Taylor, don’t bring him dinner together. Terry cautioned, “If you ever go to Macon, Georgia and run into a man by the name of Richard Norman Bates Taylor, be sure not to have dinner with him. Cliff and I, along with Norman, were asked to leave one of the nicest restaurants in Macon.

Next time we are going to by-pass Macon!” He ended the saga most emphatically, “And I will tell you that story when I see you!”

In parting, he also shared this message to his former classmates: “Cliff and I started our road trips in 2009, and long as our health holds out, we will continue. We have had some good times. One of these days you might just open your door, and we will be there. It took me 20 years to ever go back to a reunion, but as long as my health holds out, I will never miss another one. I want to encourage you to come back. We really have a good time, and the brotherhood we had at GMC still exists today. Hope to see you at the 2011 reunion!”

Traveling the short distance south into Rome, they and the Limbricks joined Ms. and Mrs. Stuart Peebles (GMC friends), Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Williams (HS 1945, JC 1946), Chad Rogers (JC 1999), on leave from a tour in Iraq, and Earlene Hamilton, Alumni Relations Coordinator, for a wonderful evening full of good food, great stories, and warm memories. While in Rome, the ambassadors called Ben Underwood (HS 1962, JC 1964), who lives in Smyrna now, and talked with him but didn’t get to go by to see him this time. His work location and their route just didn’t match.

After spending the night in Rome, they traveled on, out of the NW Georgia hills, into Griffin where they met Billy Hansell (HS 1961, JC 1963), Band Company, with whom they had a great impromptu visit. Mr. Hansell, whose father also attended GMC, gave the ambassadors a GMC annual before they left to give to the library. Then, continuing just a bit further south, the next stop brought them into Milledgeville where they visited with Clyde Dunn (JC 1963), Band Company, and yet another one whom they had not seen in 48 years.

Last, but most certainly not least in significance for memories and fodder for stories, the ambassadors rolled into Macon, where the last stop on this year’s trip, a planned one, was to see Richard Norman Bates “Dee” Taylor (HS 1965), Band Company, and have dinner together. Terry cautioned, “If you ever go to Macon, Georgia and run into a man by the name of Richard Norman Bates Taylor, be sure not to have dinner with him. Cliff and I, along with Norman, were asked to leave one of the nicest restaurants in Macon.

Next time we are going to by-pass Macon!” He ended the saga most emphatically, “And I will tell you that story when I see you!”

In parting, he also shared this message to his former classmates: “Cliff and I started our road trips in 2009, and long as our health holds out, we will continue. We have had some good times. One of these days you might just open your door, and we will be there. It took me 20 years to ever go back to a reunion, but as long as my health holds out, I will never miss another one. I want to encourage you to come back. We really have a good time, and the brotherhood we had at GMC still exists today. Hope to see you!"
Alumni from the HS & JC classes of 1960 gathered over the three day weekend to remember days gone by and bring classmates up to date on more recent happenings. But this gathering didn’t occur by random chance. Long ago at Alumni Weekend 2009, 1960 classmates who saw and visited with the Gold Brigade of 1959 decided then to enlist the help of Ed Robinson and Larry Stafford, the pair of HS ‘59ers who instigated the early recruiting for their reunion. The “blog spot” created by Ed Robinson for the 2009 reunion proved to be enormously successful at developing interest in the event and provided a perfect medium for scattered classmates to start sharing news. With that track record for success, it was only natural that one of the first steps for the classes of 1960 was to ask Ed to set up one for them, and Larry agreed to get back on the phone, searching for “lost” class members and encouraging those he found to come back.

Cal Battle agreed to establish and lead the search committee for the HS, enlisting the help of then Senator Ralph Hudgens, Jim Abbott, Tom Cademhead, Boyd Ellison, and Erle “Butch” Plunkett for the “hunt.” With that team in place and Ed putting together the blog, Larry Stafford took on the lead for the JC search, using the techniques he had developed for the ’59ers’ search, and COL Bob Alford began making the phone calls to reach out to those from JC for whom they had contact information.

Everyone was encouraged to attend all the weekend’s events, but a separate get-together time was also established for Saturday afternoon at the Sibley-Cone Library where special stories could be told, memories could be jogged using the newly digitized 1960 Recall provided by the library staff, and classmates “gone before” would be remembered.

Through the class blog marshaled together by Ed Robinson, the 50th reunion got started even before class members arrived on campus for the weekend’s parade, golf, tours, dinners and dance. Then, when Alumni Weekend actually arrived, one of its first events provided the Gold Brigade members on campus the pleasure of seeing one of their own, William “Willie” T. Moore, give the keynote address at the Friday parade and then at Saturday’s awards luncheon, and of seeing him receive the 2010 Alumni Achievement Award.

Throughout the weekend class members enjoyed participating in the events, but, most of all, they enjoyed each other. Fifty years is a long time in one sense, but when old friends get back together, those years drop away in the blink of an eye. It’s what makes the Gold Brigade reunion a very special time during Alumni Weekend at GMC.
HS 1973 Reunion

In spite of the year’s not being a typical five-year reunion anniversary date, members of the HS Class of 1973 decided to get together during Alumni Weekend at GMC for a 37th-year reunion. The event was coordinated by LTC Jim Kjer, who arranged for the group to have a private meeting space in the newly-opened Ussery Hall and for a special tour of the Prep School facility as well as a presentation about the next big GMC project on the horizon, a Health and Wellness Center. The group also enjoyed getting together at Aubri Lane’s after the Friday football game, and they were graciously hosted by Susan Hemphill’s parents at their lake house on Saturday. Classmates from 1973 who were able to attend included Jim and Maggie Kjer, Myles Jones, Dewey and Melissa Scott, Mike and Cathy Perez, Vanderbilt and Gina Edwards, Susan Hemphill, Cathy Hodges Daniel, Annette Little Crawford, Ralph and Susan Parrado, Jerry Cowart, Henry Pover, Merel Harrison, Ben and Carol Plessus, Larry and Patricia Thompson, and Bonnie Waller. Classmates from 1974 who joined them over the weekend included Carolyn Kjer, Tom and Ellen Torrance, Gay Burris Ibbotson, Mervin Greene Rogers, and Bonnie Rice Schubert.

JC 1990 Reunion

Members of the JC Class of 1990 reunited during Alumni Weekend to catch up with each other and to visit GMC once more. Those able to attend included Class Agent, LTC Thomas “Tom” Hanley, who is currently based in Tampa, Florida; Mark Witte, who retired from Active Army as a Special Forces MAJOR and is now a defense contractor living in Northern Virginia; and Ron Fundark, who served as an Infantry Officer in Active Army and is now a policeman living in Pennsylvania – all also part of the ECP commissioning class of 1990. Rodney Mull was “man of the hour” at the Alumni Awards Luncheon on Saturday, making the presentation to Mrs. Brenda Burris Ibbotson, Mervin Greene Rogers, and Bonnie Rice Schubert.

HS 2000 Reunion

Diana K. New, HS 2000, commented, “GMC’s High School Class of 2000 met at 119 Chops in downtown Milledgeville on the Friday evening of Alumni Weekend, and everyone had a great time! Not only were we able to catch up with everyone about what has happened in our lives over the last ten years, but we also shared a great deal of laughter as we reminisced about stories and events from high school. We made plans to see each other more often and, hopefully, plan a get-together each year.”

Georgia Military College alumni and friends gathered on October 22 and 23 to celebrate Alumni Weekend 2010 and to recognize the year’s alumni award recipients. Prior to the awards presentation, alumni and friends had the opportunity to mix and mingle while enjoying a reception that was then followed by a delicious buffet lunch served under main tent. The recipients of these prestigious awards are selected annually from submitted nominations.

Bill Massee was born in Milledgeville, where he attended and graduated from Baldwin High School. Massee then received his associate’s degree from Georgia Military College and his Bachelor of Business Administration degree from Georgia College. He also graduated from the 208th Session of the FBI National Academy. He was employed as a GBI Agent for 5 1/2 years before serving 2 1/2 years as the City Police Chief in Milledgeville. Massee is currently serving his sixth term as sheriff of Baldwin County, which is the longest consecutive tenure in the history of the county. He is the past president of the Georgia Sheriffs’ Association and the past president of the County Officers’ Association of Georgia. He also has served as a member of the Georgia Board of Corrections and on the Peace Officers Standards and Training Council and currently serves on the Georgia Sheriffs’ Association Board of Directors and the Ocmulgee Drug Task Force.

Combining his professional career and his community involvement, Massee was instrumental in starting the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program in Milledgeville and was instrumental in starting the DARE program for Baldwin County schools, which began in 1990, and then in 2000 evolved to become the CHAMPS (Choosing Healthy Activities & Methods Promoting Safety) program. The Will Robinson Road Race, began in honor and memory of Deputy Will Robinson, GMC ‘87, whose life was the time of duty in 1995, provides funding for this project. Under Sheriff Massee’s leadership, the Baldwin County Sheriff’s Department co-hosts and coordinates this event each November for an increasing number of community participants.

Massee is also involved in Leadership Baldwin and Youth Leadership Baldwin County. Additionally, he is a Knight Foundation board member and a member of the Benevolent Masonic Lodge. He is a frequent speaker for church groups, civic organizations, and schools – all of which allow him to also keep a finger on the pulse of those he serves. When one attends an event in the community, it is almost a certainty that Sheriff Massee will be among those present. He watches over Baldwin County citizens as if they are family, and the community’s recognition of his many contributions is certainly evidenced by a six-year consecutive term elected official who holds such a pivotal position.

The Honorary Alumni Award is bestowed upon individuals who are not alumni of Georgia Military College, but who have rendered special or exceptional service to the school or to its Alumni Association, and who, by virtue of their service, are worthy of the designation of GMC Alumnus and all that the designation entails.

Frances “Fran” Pardee Usery
Milledgeville, Georgia

Growing up on a dairy farm, where “if you didn’t have it, you made do,” produced a woman who learned at a very early age to appreciate the fruit of hard work and dedication. Frances “Fran” Pardee Usery’s love and dedication to Georgia Military College have been strong and persistent since the early 70’s when she met W.J. “Bill” Usery. Mrs. Usery has worked diligently, being a devoted wife and mother to their seven children. She is an active member of the Baldwin County Master Gardener Program and the Garden Club.

Her professional career began with working for Chrysler Corporation as Executive Assistant to the Washington Zone Manager. The competent manner in which she performed job assignments won her the opportunity to travel extensively, and she took many trips to Europe, visiting museums and historical sites, broadening her world knowledge and view. After retiring from Chrysler Corporation in 1988, Mrs. Usery began working as a hostess for a Washington, D.C. gourmet club, hosting dinners for VIP’s in the Washington area’s finest restaurants. It was while she was hosting a VIP event at the Watergate Hotel that she met W.J. Usery. Soon after, she began her own company, providing catering and hosting services for Bill Usery Associates, a Washington, D.C.-based firm providing consulting services in matters relating to employee–employer labor relations.

Mrs. Usery and her husband, Bill, now reside mostly in Milledgeville, Georgia, where they recently moved into their new lake-front condo. She is extremely happy to be permanently located in Milledgeville where they can continue their efforts to preserve and extend the GMC legacy into the future.
The Oak Leaf Society was established to honor individuals who include Georgia Military College in their estate plan. Alumni and friends who arrange planned gifts create a legacy for the future of Georgia Military College and its students. To those who have done so, we are truly grateful for your loyalty and your desire to make a difference for generations to come. In October of 2010, during Alumni Week, a luncheon was held in honor of those who have made testamentary gift commitments to GMC through the GMC Foundation. MG Peter J. Boylan, USA (Ret.), GMC President, announced new members of the Oak Leaf Society and presented each with a commemorative plaque and an Oak Leaf Society Pin.

Ms. Anne Martin and COL Robert N. Tredway

A few years ago, upon Bob’s attending the 45th reunion of the GMC HS Class of ’53, his wife Anne commented on the joy she felt as "the years melted away and 'the boys' seemed to pick up where they left off in 1953."

As the next several years passed, the class determined that a lasting legacy would be the hallmark of the Class of ’53—a continuing and growing legacy that would recognize both students and teachers and provide a living memorial to the values instilled by GMC and embodied in the Class of '53.

Bob and Anne continued to enjoy the fellowship and camaraderie that resulted from reconnecting with old friends . . . and they were touched by the outpouring of love and concern during Bob’s battle with cancer. Anne has said that it was important to Bob to “put things in order,” to include making a provision for GMC in their will. Anne agreed wholeheartedly and has since commented that she knew what GMC had meant in Bob’s life – his friends, his teachers—the people who cared about the boys who grew into young men before their eyes. For Bob, the impact of GMC included the GMC values, the GMC legacy, and the contribution to society that GMC graduates have made in the past and will make in years to come.

Bob and Anne’s bequest will further endow the HS Class of ’53 Fund, which will in perpetuity recognize excellence among GMC faculty and students.

Dr. George Coletti graduated from GMC high school in 1957 and from the junior college in 1959 with the rank of cadet lieutenant colonel, with honors. Dr. Coletti says he credits his years at GMC with developing many of the life skills and values that have strengthened and enriched his life, citing leadership, trustworthiness, and academic achievement.

Dr. Coletti is semi-retired after working many years as an oral surgeon and dentist in the Stone Mountain and DeKalb communities. He and his wife Susan stay involved in many local charitable causes and annual events in the community.

Dr. Coletti maintains strong ties with GMC. He serves as a GMC Foundation board member and has made the commitment of an unrestricted planned gift, hoping to reduce barriers to higher education for GMC’s students in the future.
Behind The Scenes — by Susan Prosser

• She was born on the family farm in South Dakota. Her grandparents moved there when her father was 12. They had to go back to retrieve more items and left her father there by himself (from fall to spring). When asked how he took care of himself, he said he had help from a nearby Sioux tribe that would leave him food and other items— one of which was the necklace she was wearing... all for his playing his violin.
• She and the other “ladies” were trained in Texas by the FBI in how to deal with top secret material. She explained that while she typed the plans, she really didn’t read what she was typing. For over 50 years she never told anyone what she did because she was afraid that the FBI would come after her. Her husband, whom she met in London, never knew, nor did their adopted son. (Both have passed away.)
• While taking a tour of Windsor Castle, she and her roommate were admiring paintings in one of the rooms when the royal family, King George VI, Queen Elizabeth and their daughters Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, walked in. She said they were very nice and cordial.
• She was also at 10 Downing Street having tea when Prime Minister Churchill came into the room, grabbed some scenes and left. She said she wrote home to her mother that she had had “tea with Churchill.”
• She told about living several stories underground in London during the bombings. Guards would escort her and the other ladies to and from home/place of work. They were concerned that they would be picked up because of the nature of their work. None of the ladies knew what the others were typing or working on.
• She told about the parade in Paris that lasted eight hours... after the liberation of the city. After they passed the reviewing stand, the ladies get out of their vehicle and continued to watch the parade.

Helen Kogel Denton is a retired veteran of World War II, who has a special place in American history. In June of 1944, Mrs. Denton—then known as Corporal Kogel—worked for General Dwight D. Eisenhower, typing battle plans for D-Day, the United States’ invasion of Normandy, France. Her contributions to our country and her significant role in history earned her the Gold Medal of Merit, which was presented to her by President Obama at the VFW National Convention in August 2010. Mrs. Denton recently visited the GMC Fairburn campus to speak to students about her experiences. She also presented a copy of an extract of the D-Day invasion plans to Library Director Glen Phillips for the archives of the Sibley-Cone Library. The original document is well over 3000 pages, but Mrs. Denton chose 25 pages just to represent the magnitude of the total supplies, equipment and troops that had to be coordinated between countries.

First Year Experience Program

GMC will soon launch its brand new First Year Experience program. The program consists of a number of integrated initiatives whose goal is to improve student success and retention during the all-important first year, and especially the first term.

National studies show that if we can keep students on track toward success in their first year, the odds of their persevering to graduation are greatly increased.

GMC has been working for over a year now designing its First Year Experience program. Building on the efforts of campus teams formed to design and vet various initiatives, the FYE Executive Committee, chaired by President Boylan, has concentrated its focus on several key components of the program:

• GMC 101, College Success, will replace the current GMC 100, Preparing for Success. The new course will continue to focus on study skills and other practices designed to help students succeed, but it will be a three-credit-hour requirement for all our students rather than a two-hour requirement only for LSS students.
• Orientation is undergoing a thorough overhaul, including the addition of an online orientation designed to reinforce concepts for students suffering from orientation information overload as well as to reach out to students taking courses online and those who cannot attend a face-to-face orientation.
• Student Passports have been developed to foster campus and community engagement among first-time students at GMC. The passports have been designed to encourage students to participate in social activities as well as study groups, cultural activities, and community service.
• Student Ambassadors will serve each of GMC’s campuses. These students will be given the enviable job of being our official “social butterflies” whose jobs include engaging other students to help them feel at home here at GMC.

A pilot of our FYE program begins in spring, 2011, at the Columbus campus. The program will be launched fully at all campuses in fall, 2011.

CHALLENGING CREATIVITY

GMC’s junior college Creative Thinking Club emerged from the great success and student interest in the various spontaneous short critical thinking challenges which Ms. Amy Zipper, GMC Assistant Professor of English, presented during the school year. During this particular challenge, students were divided into teams and given sets of materials (drinking straws and straight pins). Each team’s goal was to build the tallest structure possible in a predetermined amount of time (seven minutes). The Creative Thinking Club, with Zipper serving as faculty advisor, aims to regularly bring these activities to the entire student population.
Seymour Speaks at President’s Day Parade

Robert T. “Bob” Seymour, JC 1963, was guest of honor and parade speaker at the recent President’s Day Parade. He described the experience as, “a recognition of achievement that made all of life’s struggles and hard work worthwhile—a small, yet grand, moment in time.”

Prior to the parade, Seymour addressed the 132nd Corps of Cadets in an early-morning gathering in the Goldstein Center for the Performing Arts. Afterward he commented, “I am greatly indebted to GMC and have been truly blessed beyond measure. I hope that my visit gave someone the encouragement needed to accomplish their dreams and goals in life.”

Seymour was born in Memphis, Tenn., and raised in Orlando and Jacksonville, Fla. He attended GMC 1961-1963 and graduated with distinction (ninth in class). He attended Stetson University 1963-1966 and graduated with a BBA degree. He went into management with Ford Motor Corporation and later took a job with Mystic Tape Division of Borden Chemical. His third and final job was with Electrical Insulation Suppliers, where he spent 38 years. He was sales/profits leader for 33 consecutive years and saw the company grow from $5 million in sales to over $650 million.

Seymour married his wife, Kathey, in 1965, while still at Stetson. They have been married nearly 47 years and have four children and 14 grandchildren. They have retired to Jacksonville, Fla.

GMC Softball

The junior college softball team at Georgia Military College is geared up and ready to get its season started. Coach Ashley Mayhue commented, “Our girls have been working very hard over the past couple of months, and we are excited to see all of this hard work pay off! This year’s team is comprised of six returners from last year’s team and eight newcomers. Returning players are Kayla Cooper, Caroline Conn, Mallory Long, Ashley Wates, Alex Johnson, and Korie Wilson. Each of these players brings experience and leadership to a fairly young team.

Among our newcomers are Brittany Newsome and Savannah Waldrop, both of which are transfer students. Newsome will see her fair share of time on the mound and in the outfield, while Waldrop will split time between first and the outfield. Along with Newsome, we have four freshmen pitchers: Erin Gibson, Crystal Ward, Amanda Evans, and Heather Murray. Each of these girls has worked hard and is ready to play. All four of them will also see playing time at other positions. Our next newcomers are Lindsay Fisher and Anna Ellis. Fisher will be sharing time behind the plate with Wates, while Ellis will see playing time both in the infield and outfield.

Coach Mayhue anticipates a successful season for the team. “I think we have a great group of girls, and I can’t wait to see how things turn out this season,” she said. “We look forward to seeing everyone out at our games. Go Bulldogs!”

Georgia Day Proclamation

General James Edward Oglethorpe founded the Colony of Georgia at Yamcraw Bluff, near the present-day Savannah, on February 12, 1733. This event officially began the settlement of the last of the 13 original British colonies in North America. This territory would eventually become the State of Georgia.

To promote greater awareness of this historic moment, for more than 25 years, Georgia Military College has hosted a formal ceremony for the public signing of the Georgia Day Proclamation. This year’s ceremony took place on Thursday, February 10, 2011. Participating in the ceremony were Governor Nathan Deal, MG Peter Boylan, President of Georgia Military College; the GMC Prep School was selected by our peer schools in Region 4A to receive the Georgia High School (GHSA) Cooperative Spirit Sportsmanship Award which honors our students for exemplary sportsmanship demonstrated during the 2009-2010 school year. This award was sponsored by GHSA and Georgia EMC.

Cooperative Spirit Sportsmanship Award

GMC Prep School was selected by our peer schools in Region 4A to receive the Georgia High School (GHSA) Cooperative Spirit Sportsmanship Award which honors our students for exemplary sportsmanship demonstrated during the 2009-2010 school year. This award was sponsored by GHSA and Georgia EMC.
Georgia Military College is an educational institution that cares for those who need particular attention, and during the 2009-2010 school years we continued that great tradition of assistance to others by serving thousands of hours of community service.

One example of our dedicated service is the presentation of DSSL awards; the Distinguished Order of Servant Leader Awards were presented to twenty-one staff, faculty, and students during the year. Each participant represents more than one hundred hours of community service completed during one calendar year.

Countless highlights of the service by members on Main Campus and the Distant Learning Centers are documented during the year and included visiting patients in numerous nursing homes and the resident clients at Georgia War Veteran’s Home, and aiding students at various educational institutions.

Our students, staff and faculty work tirelessly supporting projects such as River of Life, Animal Rescue Foundation, and children in foster care, Special Olympics and Relay for Life. We donate to the United Way and support the Boys and Girls Clubs of Baldwin County by assisting with the annual Spaghetti Supper.

The blood drive program continues to flourish and on main campus the longstanding record of collecting over one hundred pints of blood during one drive was shattered during the winter quarter. When the ending total was received, we had donated over one hundred and twenty units of blood.

GMC Prep and Junior College students helped pick up 4.56 tons of trash, including over 2,000 bags of litter removed from the community roadsides in the Keep Milledgeville Baldwin Beautiful Campaign.

Georgia Military College has participated in Make-A-Difference Day since 1996 and continued that tradition by gathering needed and requested items for the 48th Brigade, currently serving in Iraq. Hundreds of personal care items were donated and also included were paperback books, stationery, snack food, hard candy and popcorn.
Spring 2011

If you believe it, you can do it! Obviously, the many alumni who have supported the Alumni Scholarship through their membership in the 1879 Circle of Friends truly believe… and yes, they have done it! Their generosity has established, and continues to build, a fund for the future—a perpetual fund to provide scholarships year after year for children and grandchildren of GMC alumni.

The fund, with a market value nearing $60,000, continues to grow toward the next milestone of $100,000. And, as the market value increases, so will the ability to impact the lives of young people with assistance in attending GMC.

If you are willing to join the ranks of the 1879 Circle of Friends through your annual gift of $18.79 or greater, make your gift online at www.gmcfoundation.org or by mail at GMC Foundation, 201 E. Greene St., Milledgeville, GA 31061. Anyone in GMC Advancement at (478) 387-4840 will be happy to answer questions regarding the fund.

2010 Will Robinson Memorial Run

The 15th Annual Will Robinson Road Race, a joint project between the GMC Alumni Association and the Baldwin County Sheriff’s Department, was held on November 20, 2010. Suzanne Rattiff, GMC Alumni Board secretary and co-chair of the race committee, felt it was again a great success with about 380 runners turning out and 20 local sponsors stepping up to help.

This year’s race raised around $5,500, which will be shared among the Will Robinson Scholarship at GMC, the 1879 Circle of Friends Scholarship, also at GMC, and the V.A.M.P.S. (Choosing Healthy Activities and Methods Promoting Safety) program.

The race continues to be a family event and a community event held in memory of fallen deputy and GMC alumnus, Will Robinson.

Next year’s race will be held on November 19, 2011.

It was with great surprise I learned that he was a graduate of GMC class of ’02 while I was class of ’04.
