Among the many pleasant duties I undertake is the quarterly meeting with the Prep School Cadet Honor Committee. This committee is composed of three cadets from each of the 9 - 12 year groups who are elected to the position during their freshman year. It is a four-year assignment for these cadets and it is most uplifting to watch them mature over the years as they increasingly come to understand and embrace the concept of honor. At a recent meeting, I asked each of them to speak to the difficulties of resolving the potential conflicts between loyalty to friends and adherence to the honor code. Not only was each able to understand the dilemmas that can occur, but they responded in ways that let me know that they were unafraid of the challenges to friendships and, more, that they were proud that their fellow cadets were circumspect in speaking about activities which involved honor issues. For a young person to place honor above friendship at an age when friendships and group acceptance are paramount issues gave me great pride in them and in what our character education programs are accomplishing. “Duty, Honor, Country” are not just words that these cadets mouth every morning; they are concepts that are internalized, however dimly, and expressed concretely in their daily actions. I hope that each of you will share in my pride of these youngsters and all of our cadets. Their lives will make a difference.

Construction on the new prep school began in February and is expected to be completed by May 2010. Furnishing the building will occupy the next months and we expect the building will be ready for occupancy when the cadets return in early August. I am profoundly grateful to all of you who have been so generous in helping us achieve our goals to resource this building.

Peter J. Boylan
Major General, USA (Ret.)
President
Each year in December, a special evening takes place to honor the generous and the committed. The atmosphere is magical with sights and sounds that echo the thoughtfulness and charity of those in attendance.

Hosted by MG Peter Boylan and his wife, Kathy, this year’s GMC President’s Gala Reception and Dinner reflected the silver lining of successes that were accomplished in 2008.

Within the historic beauty of the Old Capitol Building’s Legislative Chamber, soft light gleamed upon sterling silver candelabras and urns overflowing with roses, evergreens, lilies, hydrangeas and silver eucalyptus. The arrangements stood tall upon tables of sparkling ornaments, silver marquis and delectable foods of shrimp and crab casserole, roasted beef tenderloin, cranberry and brie stuffed chicken breast, potatoes au gratin with gruyere cheese with side dishes of asparagus, English peas, corn pudding and green beans. Beribboned garland and wreaths with sparkling lights adorned the windows and balcony, providing scents of the season while soft melodies from a string quartet filled the room.

As noted by GMC Foundation Chairperson Bill Craig, it was a congenial gathering of family - the GMC family who, through their key efforts this past year, witnessed $3.3 million in gifts to the GMC Foundation, over $70,000 awarded in scholarships, $1.2 million in commitments toward the new preparatory school and an endowment growth from $5.8 million to $8.7 million at the end of June 2008.

“The purpose of the annual President’s dinner is to thank those who have been so generous to this institution,” stated MG Boylan. “We had hoped that the State would have been able to provide the capital funds by the time of this dinner, but, as anticipated, the economy delayed this. However, the sale of the bonds by the State of Georgia on February 12 will permit us to begin construction of the prep school the following week and will not substantially delay progress.”

This year will continue to reflect the generosity of spirit. The schedule for completion of the new prep school is still expected to be met, with its opening in August 2010. Added MG Boylan, “I am particularly excited about this effort because of the many alumni and friends who have been so helpful in allowing us to realize this goal. This new building will be a monument to what this institution produces in its graduates.”

A throng of students and faculty cheered as the first of the bricks fell. Many of those that gathered there to watch will soon walk the halls of the new prep school building that will replace the fallen barracks. They will fill its 38 new classrooms and have access to its state-of-the-art laboratories.

“This will be an example of the finest technology available in education today,” said Boylan after exiting the trackhoe. “It will be an example for excellence in education across this state and across this nation.”

A LOOK BACK:
Within a few short days, the once grand and historic Main Barracks building was reduced to a pile of rubble. Its absence gave way to a new vantage point of the Old Capitol Building from Clarke Street - a view that hadn’t been seen since the late 1800s.

The barracks had been a part of the GMC landscape since 1895 when the original building was constructed. In the early part of 1919, the barracks was ravaged by fire, but by the end of the same year, cadets were able to move back into a new building, now made of brick and called Main Barracks. Until a few years ago, when the new Baldwin County Courthouse was constructed, the Main Barracks was the largest building in Milledgeville.

Its demolition was bittersweet for many former cadets. Some stopped to watch as the façade came down, exposing the walls of their old rooms. Days later, as others from all generations returned to campus for Alumni Weekend, they shared stories of their life in the barracks and the antics that took place along those halls.

Many over alumni weekend purchased souvenir bricks that were saved from the demolition site as a way to honor GMC’s past while helping secure its future.

And though it may have been somewhat painful for returning alumni to see the walls of a place that housed so many memories torn down, it was equally exciting to think of the new ones that will be made inside the new building for many more generations to come.
A MOVE FORWARD:

On Friday, Oct. 17, a groundbreaking ceremony was held at the site of the future prep school. As various dignitaries symbolically turned the first layer of dirt, it signified the property’s transition into the future.

Soon, a three-story, 78,575-square-foot facility will stand in place of Main Barracks and Vinson Hall. It will take its place among the New Academic Building and the Old Capitol Building along Grant Field, and will reflect the Gothic-style of their exteriors.

The building will house 38 classrooms and several state-of-the-art laboratories to serve students in the middle and high schools. The new prep school will allow the consolidation of classrooms currently utilized in five different buildings on campus and will replace the need for the aging Jenkins Hall, which was built in 1926.

Slated for completion in 2010, the building was designed by Lord, Aeck, & Sargent - a design that Boylan says will “last a century.” Construction of the project is being carried out by Skanska who began work in February.

The new prep school will house 38 classrooms and several state-of-the-art laboratories to serve students in the middle and high schools. The new prep school will allow the consolidation of classrooms currently utilized in five different buildings on campus and will replace the need for the aging Jenkins Hall, which was built in 1926.

Various other donors have sponsored classrooms, offices and workrooms throughout the new building.

A PROMISING FUTURE:

Usery jump-started the prep school’s fundraising campaign with a $1 million donation toward the construction of the building. Many others have followed suit by supporting “GMC’s Promise Campaign,” a campaign charged with raising $1,434,000 through naming opportunities and educational endowments.

Like Usery, several other major donors have been compelled to contribute to the campaign through naming opportunities, bringing the total amount raised to $1,311,500.

Dr. and Mrs. Ferguson and his sister Judith Ferguson Smith have chosen to sponsor the Health Services Center. Dr. George Echols and his wife Polly will name one of the school’s Biology Labs. The Music Suite has been sponsored by former music and art teacher Beegee Baugh along with her husband Dr. James Baugh. A computer lab will be named by Asbury Stembridge for his wife Charlotte, a retired teacher. And Fran Usery has sponsored the school’s conference room in honor of her husband, W. J. “Bill” Usery, Jr.

Various other donors have sponsored classrooms, offices and workrooms throughout the new building.

To date, only a few naming opportunities remain. A biology lab and a computer lab make up the last of the major opportunities at $30,000 each, and there is a limited number of smaller opportunities available as well — four classrooms, at a contribution of $5,000 each, and one multi-purpose classroom at $7,500.

Outside the walls of the new prep school, a final naming opportunity for the courtyard and its fountain has been made recently available for a contribution of $120,000. The fountain will be the courtyard’s central focus, providing a comfortable seating arrangement and creating a contemplative atmosphere.

n Thursday, Oct. 16, honored guests were invited to the Goldstein Center for the Performing Arts for a black-tie dinner and concert featuring the music of GMC Professor and musical director Moona Yu. The evening’s event was somewhat out of the ordinary - every seat in the house was empty.

But on stage, it was a different story.

Moona Yu shared the stage with each of the invited guests - though she sat at a Steinway Concert Grand Piano and everyone else sat at tables adorned with white linens, fine china and floral centerpieces.

It was a unique concert experience coordinated by MG Peter J. Boylan to honor the dedicated leadership and major supporters of the “GMC’s Promise” campaign. Following a powerful musical performance by Yu, guests enjoyed a formal dinner served personally by GMC cadets.

It was a classic evening, punctuated by a high-caliber piano performance that allowed guests to experience new and exciting facets of GMC’s growth, like the Goldstein Center, and the opportunities, like the concert, that it offers its students and its community.
The Greatest Return for our giving is its impact on the Future.

GEORGIA MILITARY COLLEGE FOUNDATION
Annual Giving Report
July 1, 2007 to June 30, 2008
The GMC Foundation was established in 1955 as the official fundraising arm of Georgia Military College. The foundation helps to support the mission of GMC by generating private funds to financially support the educational and development activities of the school.

A volunteer board of trustees serves as the governing body. All board members provide their services to the GMC Foundation without compensation and have otherwise invested philanthropically in the foundation. A ten-member executive committee elected from the membership of the board meets monthly and is authorized to act on the trustees’ behalf.

The foundation is a separate, independent organization that is chartered by the State of Georgia as a 501 (c) (3) nonprofit educational corporation, and gifts to the foundation are tax deductible to the full extent of the law.
The Oak Leaf Society was established to honor individuals who include Georgia Military College in their estate plan or in a planned gift arrangement. Some of these legacy gifts are unrestricted, while some are designated for a particular purpose such as providing scholarships or vital support for programs and services.

Alumni and friends who make such planned gifts create a legacy for the future of Georgia Military College and its students. We are truly grateful for their loyalty and their desire to make a difference for generations to come.

*In Memory

Alumni and friends who believe in Georgia Military College have joined together to significantly impact the future - and this remarkable impact continues to strengthen and grow. Individually and collectively, financial commitments in recent years have provided numerous opportunities that otherwise would not have existed, enabling rapid and sure progress for the institution.

The GMC Foundation received private support of $1.6 million in outright gifts and $1.7 million in bequests, for a total of $3.3 million during the past fiscal year alone.

Generosity unprecedented in GMC’s history has made possible:

- Substantial endowment growth, from $5.8 million to $8.7 million
- Commitments of $1.2 million for the new GMC Prep School
- Scholarships and awards of over $70,000
- Five new named endowed scholarships
- Support for departments and programs
- Numerous special initiatives

The GMC Foundation remains committed to helping ensure that our college and prep school students have every advantage by providing funds for scholarships, programs, classroom equipment and technology, and the facilities master plan. The continued partnership of our alumni and friends is vital as we strive to generate resources for providing the margin of excellence that will offer our students the very best opportunities.

Together, we are building an institution that will last long beyond the days that our individual footsteps mark these paths. Indeed, we are building an institution that is designed to serve not just the moment, but the ages. We are deeply grateful for the generosity of our alumni and friends who, even in the days at hand, remain committed to this mission.

Couple Thanks GMC for Their “62 Years of Happy Marriage”

COL Frank Davis, Georgia Army National Guard (Ret.), and his wife, Dot, will tell you without hesitation that Georgia Military College had a major influence on their lives and their happiness—and in the case of Col. Davis, even his health.

COL Davis, who graduated from the junior college in 1942, was sent to GMC by his father, a ship’s agent. In the late 1930s, the elder Davis heard from German ship captains that war was imminent.

“He sent me to military school so I would be prepared,” says COL Davis, who at age 20, right out of GMC, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army and sent to Europe. He survived the war, including the Battle of the Bulge, in good shape—and for that he gives credit to his GMC training.

“I am lucky to be alive,” COL Davis says today. And his GMC-related luck does not end there. It was at a GMC football game that COL Davis met Dot, a cheerleader, who has been his wife for more than six decades.

“We’ve had 62 years of happy marriage,” Dot says, “and have two children, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren—all as a result of GMC. There would be no us, there would be no family, without GMC.”

In appreciation, the couple has made memorial and other gifts to GMC over the years. COL Davis served six years on the board of trustees, and they’re leaving a bequest in their will to establish the Frank C. and Dorothy K. Davis Scholarship.

Charitable giving “is very important because it gives the institution an opportunity to do some things they maybe couldn’t do otherwise.”

-COL Frank Davis

Charitable giving “is very important because it gives the institution an opportunity to do some things they maybe couldn’t do otherwise,” COL Davis says. “We like GMC so much that this is where we wanted to make a contribution, to give students an educational opportunity.”
“I am more than happy to report to you gifts made through the Honoring the Spirit of Giving Campaign totaled over $600,000. Your philanthropy is helping to achieve our ambitious goals, and is greatly appreciated. These funds will help provide scholarships, new facilities and endowment growth for our school. What makes this news so meaningful is this generosity comes from alumni and friends wanting to provide the best for students at Georgia Military College.”

Dr. H. Wilbur Harper grew up in Warrenton, Georgia, and attended Warren County High School. He attended GMC High School for two years, graduating in 1952. His parents worked extremely hard to finance his education at GMC, then University of Georgia, and later, the Medical College of Georgia.

Dr. Harper’s son, Hal, has said that his father talked about his experiences at GMC as fond ones and that he kept up with what was happening at GMC over the years. He often talked about being fair, honest, and hard working, and his family was convinced that he must have learned a good deal of that at GMC.

Dr. Harper passed away on November 7, 2007 and, shortly afterward, the GMC Foundation received a bequest from his estate - a generous commitment toward ensuring the future of Georgia Military College.

“The value of a man resides in what he gives and not in what he is capable of receiving.”

- Albert Einstein
In looking back on his life, Jim Kjer easily identifies three important building blocks. First and foremost are Ed and Angie Kjer, his late parents, and the lessons they taught him. Then, there’s Georgia Military College.

“My dad had been in the Marines and my mom was a Navy nurse,” Jim says. “It was from my parents that I learned honesty and integrity—to tell the truth, to pull my own weight, to accept responsibility for my actions.

“GMC reinforced these values and had a significant influence on who I turned out to be.”

Jim graduated from GMC High School in 1973 and, after earning his college degree, was commissioned into the U.S. Army from GMC in 1976. He served as a field artillery officer until 2000, retiring as a lieutenant colonel.

Today, Jim and his wife, Maggie, live in northern Alabama. He is no stranger to GMC, however, returning several times each year as a GMC Foundation trustee at-large. Jim and Maggie, who is also an ardent GMC supporter, make annual gifts to the school, made a generous donation to name a computer lab in honor of his parents, and are both remembering GMC with “significant” gifts in their trusts.

“Other than my parents, GMC had the biggest influence on my life,” Jim says, though he notes it wasn’t until the early 1990s that he became fully aware of this “tremendous, positive impact…”

At that point, Jim became more active in his support of the school. He suggests that other alumni might also look at the positive ways in which GMC affected their lives, with an eye toward increasing their own involvement.

“My hope,” he says, “is that my actions will show my intentions and will maybe influence others. I am glad to support GMC—it is very worthwhile.”

The Georgia Military College Foundation gratefully acknowledges the generosity of donors to the following funds that are fully endowed, with individual market values of $25,000 to over $1 million each. These funds represent a far-sighted investment in securing the future for Georgia Military College and its students.

Is Your Name Missing?

Listed in this report are all contributions made during the 2007-2008 fiscal year to Georgia Military College through the GMC Foundation, the fundraising arm of the College. Every effort has been made to verify names for accuracy and completeness. If your name is not included and you think it should be, the following may explain the omission.

1. You made your gift directly to a department or program and not through the Georgia Military College Foundation. Gifts that are not made through the Foundation are not included in our records; hence, we are not aware of your gift. The Georgia Military College Foundation was established in 1955 to receive all gifts to Georgia Military College.

2. You made your gift prior to July 1, 2007 or after June 30, 2008.

3. You made a pledge instead of a gift. This listing includes only gifts received. If you made a pledge during 2007-2008 but elected not to begin payment on it until after June 30, 2008, you will be listed in next year’s Annual Giving Report.

4. Even though the listing was checked and rechecked, mistakes could have been made. We humbly apologize in advance. If you have questions, please contact us at (478) 445-2692 so we can recheck our records and make the necessary corrections.

Alumni and friends can consider variety of ways to provide support for Georgia Military College

Cash When donors are considering a gift to the college, an outright contribution is the most common method that comes to mind. Donors also can plan a gift for a set amount and schedule payments over a specified number of years.

Life Insurance A policy can be donated to the GMC Foundation, and periodic payments on the policy will be tax deductible, or the Foundation may be named as the beneficiary of a policy.

Bequests An individual can leave a specified sum of money or a particular piece of property to the foundation in his/her will. Another option is to leave a percentage of the estate or a percentage of the residual estate to the foundation after making provisions for family and friends.

Securities Stocks and publicly traded securities are easy to give and offer great tax advantages.

Bank Accounts and CDs A donor owns the assets for his/her lifetime and has them available for his/her own use, while naming the college as the beneficiary.

Retirement Plan Assets Because tax laws often subject such assets to the highest combined income and estate taxes, charitable donations of these assets may be the most efficient estate planning option, depending upon current IRS guidelines.

Charitable Remainder Trust The trust pays the donor, and other named beneficiaries, if desired, a fixed or variable income depending on the type of trust selected. The remaining amount may be designated for the foundation.

Charitable Lead Trust The trust pays income to one or more charitable organizations, typically for a period of years, and then the remaining assets of the trust pass to noncharitable beneficiaries, such as family members.

Land or Developed Property A donor can consider land, homes, vacation homes, commercial buildings or commercial property, along with other assets, when considering a gift of property.

Tangible Personal Property A donor can contribute works of art or other items that support the mission of the college, and these are deductible at their fair market value.

When making a gift, the donor can designate where the gift is to be used, or he/she may make an unrestricted gift to be used wherever needed most to promote the mission of the college.

The foundation has established endowment levels to ensure lasting and sufficient support for the college’s funding needs. Endowments created at these levels may be named by donors and designated to support such purposes as faculty chairs, scholarships, departments, buildings, and memorial funds.

To visit with a development officer about your desire to make a gift, call the Office of Advancement at (478) 445-2692 or for more information, visit www.gmcfoundation.org. As always, we continue to advise that a donor contact his/her own personal financial advisors when finalizing decisions regarding charitable giving.
Every fall, the Office of Advancement organizes a weekend filled with activities and events to welcome its alumni and friends back to GMC. Alumni Weekend provides a time to “Remember, Reflect and Reunite.”

Each year, alumni of all ages are drawn back through the gates of GMC - drawn to a place that gave them an education, a place that shaped their character, and a place that is changing and growing with each year they are away. They come in from out of town or across the street, bringing their families and friends to introduce them to their alma mater and share in the memories made there.
The weekend is traditionally kicked off each year with the Alumni Golf Tournament, held Friday morning at the Milledgeville Country Club. The time spent on the course made for great fellowshipping regardless of how great the golfing. Bragging rights for this year’s tournament went to Pitt and Bo Edwards, Tom Boyd and Ferrell Thompson.

Throughout the early afternoon as more alumni arrived to town, many made a stop at the GMC campus to see the extensive additions, improvements and changes that have taken place in recent years. Some were able to tour for the first time the New Academic Building, Baugh Barracks, Ruark Athletic Complex or the Old Capital Museum.

Perhaps the most obvious change was not the addition of any new buildings, but the absence of old ones. Main Barracks and Vinson Hall had been torn down earlier in October to make way for GMC’s new Prep School - a three-story state-of-the-art facility that will house both the middle and high schools. Dignitaries broke ground on the project at 4 p.m. Friday afternoon during a ceremony held at the construction site of the future prep school. Among them was W.J. “Bill” Usery Jr., a 1940 graduate of GMC and former U.S. Secretary of Labor for whom the new prep school will be named. “Usery Hall” is slated for completion in 2010. Following the ceremony, attendees were invited to attend a reception at Sibley Cone Memorial Library, just across from the building site.
Former U.S. Secretary of Labor W.J. “Bill” Usery Jr., was on-hand during Friday’s ceremony to help break ground on the new prep school, W. J. Usery, Jr. Hall, that will be named in his honor.

Dr. George Echols, chairman of GMC’s Promise Campaign, recognizes the efforts of various donors that made the afternoon’s groundbreaking ceremony possible through their financial contributions to the campaign.

Alumni then heeded the call to “fall in” for the annual Alumni Parade on Grant Parade. In a time-honored tradition, the former cadets filled the ranks of the alumni platoon that led the 130th Corps of Cadets past the reviewing stand. Guest speakers for this year’s parade included Jerry Wilcoxon and David Sullivan. After “falling out,” alumni and friends were able to get in a little tailgating before the high school football game against Towns County began. The Tailgate Party was held under the main tent at the south gates just outside Davenport Field.

A reception was held following the groundbreaking ceremony at the Sibley Cone Memorial Library.

Jerry Wilcoxon (JC 1958) of St. Simons Island, Georgia was one of the two guest speakers for the Alumni Parade.

Saturday’s itinerary began with a continental breakfast with GMC president, MG Peter Boylan, in the Legislative Chamber of the Old Capitol Building. The breakfast was followed by a meeting of the GMC Alumni Association and the GMC Foundation during which updates on current projects were presented. MG Boylan concluded the meeting with a State of the School Address - detailing where the school stands today and where it is going tomorrow.

During a special luncheon catered by the Willis House at the main tent, it was time for GMC to honor alumni who, through their support, have helped create a viable future for GMC, and through their character, have epitomized all things GMC historically represents. Each year, award recipients are selected from submitted nominations. This year’s recipients were as follows: Mr. William Terrell “Terry” Baggett, Distinguished Alumnus Award; Mr. Levi W. Hill III, Alumni Achievement Award; Mr. Dudley Rowe, Honorary Alumnus; Mr. Joe Mobley, GMC Service Award; Mr. Randall A. New, Community Service Award.

To wrap up this year’s events, alumni and friends gathered under the main tent for the annual Alumni Dinner and Dance. The evening’s dinner was catered by 119 Chops and live entertainment was provided by the Soul Purpose Band of Atlanta.

Light jazz during Saturday’s luncheon, following the awards ceremony, was provided by the Monty Cole Trio. Cole, pictured above on the saxophone, is an instructor at Mercer University and the director of the school’s Jazz Ensemble.

Over drinks or on the dance floor, old friends were reunited and new friends were introduced. Reunions were held - whether organized or impromptu - as former classmates returned to reminisce.

And, even as this year’s Alumni Weekend drew to a close, plans were already under way for 2009’s event, slated for Oct. 23 and Oct. 24.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI AWARD
Mr. William Terrell “Terry” Baggett  JC 1958
Douglasville, Georgia

The Distinguished Alumni Award recognizes alumni whose lives have embodied the ideals of Georgia Military College including discipline, moral character, and learning, whose accomplishments have made a conspicuous and positive impression on those who will follow their lead, and whose lives are examples of extraordinary accomplishment.

After graduating from Georgia Military College, Mr. Baggett earned a Bachelor of Science from North Georgia College & State University followed by a Master of Business Administration from the University of Georgia, completing an education which contributed to his success in the business world. After a twenty-nine year career with Bank of America, which included positions in the controllers department in regulatory reporting, in the commercial real estate department, and in the bank holding company, he retired in 1993 as Senior Vice President of Finance in Treasury Operations where he was responsible for the equity and debt funding at the holding company level in Atlanta, Georgia.

Almost concurrent with his career in business was Mr. Baggett’s thirty year military career in the U.S. Army Reserves. Beginning in 1964, he moved through several assignments, serving as Group S2 and Director, Security, Intelligence Plans and Training for Theater level depot; as Assistant Chief of Staff, G5, Third U.S. Army for civil military operations in CENTCOM area of operations; and as Deputy Chief of Staff, Resource Management 81st Army Reserve Command. He retired in 1990 after serving his last assignment as Chief of Staff of the 81st U.S. Army Reserve Command, Atlanta, Georgia, where he was responsible for the Georgia and Florida areas of operations.

Since retirement, Mr. Baggett has entered into civic and volunteer areas of interest. He is currently serving on the Development Authority of Douglas County; is President of Rotary Club of Douglas County; and is Past Georgia State President of Reserve Officers Association of the United States. He also serves on the boards of several local organizations: the Boys and Girls Club of Douglas County; the Douglas County Public Education Trust Fund, which works for the improvement of the public schools and teaching staff; and SHARE House, a service related to elimination of domestic violence and support for its victims.

Mr. Baggett is married to Laurie Cowell from Panama City, Florida, his wife of 45 years. They have three daughters and four grandchildren.
ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Mr. Levi W. Hill, III  JC 1946
Augusta, Georgia

The Alumni Achievement Award is designated for an alumnus who has attained notable success in his chosen field or profession, and whose achievement might serve as inspiration to anyone considering entering that chosen field or profession, or might serve as inspiration to anyone to excel in his chosen field or profession because of the example set by the recipient of this award.

Mr. Hill left his home town of Sandersville in 1945 to attend junior college at GMC where he made lifelong friends. From there he went on to the University of Georgia, graduating in 1950 with a Bachelor of Business Administration degree. He was employed by E. I. DuPont at its Savannah River Nuclear Plant prior to entering the U.S. Air Force as a 2LT. Mr. Hill attained the rank of Captain before his honorable discharge in 1953, at which time he became a resident of Augusta, Georgia.

Then his business career began anew when he was employed by Richmond Supply Company, a family business whose primary sales are of industrial products - particularly rubber conveyor belts and hoses. Industrial paint is also a specialty. Mr. Hill rose to the position of President in 1956 and ultimately became Chairman of the Board in 1978, in which capacity he still serves. During his tenure, he has greatly expanded the company’s employee base, its facilities, and its locations.

Concurrent with his active and successful business career, Mr. Hill has distinguished himself as a community leader, contributing unselfishly by serving on numerous boards and holding positions of leadership in such organizations as: Kiwanis Club of Uptown Augusta, University Hospital Authority, Governing Board of University Hospital, Augusta Country Club, Brandon Wilde Life Center, Richmond County Museum, Augusta Preparatory School, and the GMC Foundation. He also served for 18 years as a director of First Union National Bank of Georgia and its predecessor, Georgia Railroad Bank & Trust Company. In 2007 Mr. Hill received the Distinguished Service Award from the Georgia Hospital Association for “Significant Contributions in Improving Health Care for the People of Georgia,” one of only four people from Augusta to receive this award since 1950.

In 1958, Mr. Hill married the former Emily Carter from Toccoa, Georgia, who had attended the Women’s College of Georgia, now GCSU. They had two children, Levi IV and Emily, who now each have three children, making Mr. Hill the proud granddad of six. He is a long-time member of the St. John United Methodist Church.

HONORARY ALUMNUS

Mr. Dudley Rowe
Milledgeville, Georgia

The Honorary Alumni Award is bestowed upon individuals who are not alumni of Georgia Military College, but who have rendered special or exceptional service to the school or to its Alumni Association, and who, by virtue of their service, are worthy of the designation of GMC Alumnus and all that the designation entails.

Mr. Rowe was born and raised on his family farm in the southwestern part of England. At age 16 he joined ECC, PLC, a large British international minerals and chemicals company, as a student engineer. This started a career that lasted 45 years and took him to all parts of the world.

He graduated as an electrical engineer from Plymouth Institute of Technology and received further education at Manchester University and other business schools. After graduation he worked in a number of management positions in various parts of the world, living in England, Italy, and India before coming to the United States of America. His role expanded as the company grew, and he was appointed to the Board of ECC International. Before his retirement as a senior executive, he was promoted to Executive Vice President, responsible for approximately 4500 people in 20 plus countries.

Mr. Rowe has served on many business, professional, and civic boards and committees around the world, being president of some. In 1993, he became a United States citizen, giving him dual citizenship with the United Kingdom. In the same year, the State of Alabama House of Representatives recognized him for his services to business development in the state.

He has served as a director of Century Bank & Trust since 2001 and as a Century Bancorp director since 2002. He is currently Chairman of the Board of Century Bancorp. He also is current President of the Lockerly Board of Trustees, serves on the GCSU Foundation Board and the Business School Advisory Council, and was a past Senior Warden of Saint Stephens Episcopal Church.

Mr. Rowe serves as 2nd Vice Chairman of the Georgia Military College Foundation Board of Trustees, Vice Chairman of the Development Committee, and a member of the Executive Committee. He has been instrumental in organizing a grants program for the Foundation and providing invaluable leadership to the organization.

He and his wife Jenny have lived in Baldwin County since 1990. They have two children, Gary and Lisa, and two grandchildren, Alexandra and Samantha.
The GMC Service Award is designated for an alumnus or friend of Georgia Military College who has rendered special service to the school or to any of its ancillary organizations including the GMC Alumni Association, the Bulldog Club, the Booster Club, or the GMC Foundation, Inc.

Mr. Mobley entered GMC as a barracks cadet, and after graduating, went to work for Georgia Power Company in the water chemistry department at Plant Harllee Branch in 1965. He was promoted to Assistant Chemist at Plant Yates and moved with his wife, Tondra, and their three children to Carrollton, Georgia in 1970. While living there, he returned to school at West Georgia College and received a BBA degree. In 1976, he moved his family back to Milledgeville, where he worked in the Safety & Health Department at Plant Branch.

His children, Valerie, Jay, and Stephanie, all attended GMC, graduating in 1983, 1986, and 1987, respectively. All three also went on to graduate from Kennesaw State University in Kennesaw, Georgia. While his children attended GMC, he was involved with many programs. He served as president of the Bulldog Club, was a member of the Alumni Association, and chaired the annual Bulldog Club barbecued chicken fundraiser. He was committee chair for the sale of ads and printing of the Friday night football programs and filmed the home games. During this time, he also drove one of the buses for the junior college basketball team.

In 1989, Mr. Mobley was promoted to Manager of the Safety & Health Department for power generation plants statewide. This promotion required another move, sending Tondra and him to Peachtree City this time where he worked out of the general office. After moving back to Milledgeville in 2001, he continued to work out of the general office until his retirement in 2003 with thirty-eight years of service.

After his return to Milledgeville, Mr. Mobley became involved with a GMC project for the new baseball field, which needed transmission poles for lighting. He made some contacts and was able to secure enough poles to provide lighting for the baseball, softball and soccer fields. He followed this initial re-entry into GMC service by then becoming a member of the GMC Foundation Board, for which he leads the engraved paver project at the new barracks. In 2007 he accepted the position of vice president of the Alumni Association and has been very involved with Alumni Weekend and the Will Robinson Road Race, for which the Alumni Association has become a co-sponsor. He is a member of the “1879 Circle of Friends,” which provides scholarships for children and grandchildren of GMC alumni. Even with a long list of commitments, he still finds time to also give back to his community by serving as one of the guides on Milledgeville’s Trolley Tours, during which GMC’s campus is featured.

Mr. Mobley and his wife, Tondra, are the proud grandparents of two boys and five girls.

The Community Service Award is given to Georgia Military College alumni who, through leadership, inspiration, teamwork, or hard work in the spirit of volunteerism or in their professional activities, have taken the lessons of GMC’s Character Education beyond the classroom and whose actions are characterized by a history of exemplary service resulting in unquestionable improvements within their community.

Mr. New, a life-long resident of Baldwin County, subsequently received his Bachelor of Science in Economics and Management from Georgia College & State University after graduating from GMC. Following three years service in the U. S. Army, he began putting his education directly to use in his hometown where he is currently the Vice President and Co-owner of Baye’s Army Store in downtown Milledgeville as well as the Co-owner and Managing Partner for B & N Investments. In 1992, he accepted the honor of being Small Business Owner of the Year. In addition, he is a partner in the Old Capital Gun Club and is an NRA qualified instructor in five disciplines.

In addition to his business activities, Mr. New is very involved in community affairs and events. He has been a member of the GMC Board of Trustees since 1992 and has served as Chairman of the Board since 1998. He is also a member of the Georgia Military College Oak Leaf Society. Mr. New has been a member of the Exchange Bank Board of Directors since 2005. He is a founding board member and former treasurer of Milledgeville Main Street/DDA, a founding member of the Downtown Merchant’s Council, and a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

For the past 18 years he has served as the chairman for the Empty Stocking Fund, a project that feeds needy families in the community. Donations from the community allow the Fund to help these families not only during the holiday season, but year round. Along with chairing this philanthropic project, he has served as a volunteer coach with the Milledgeville-Baldwin County Recreation Department for 10 years, and his NRA qualifications serve him well in his role as a mentor for youth involvement in the hunting sports.

Mr. New and his wife, Cynthia, have two children, daughter, Diana, son, Corey, and a daughter-in-law, Leslie.
We invite your nominations for the 2009 GMC Alumni Awards. Alumni, friends of the school, and non-alumni supporters of GMC and its ancillary organizations may qualify. The deadline for nominations is June 10, 2009. If you have any questions, please call the Office of Advancement at (478) 445-2692.

Will Robinson
Race

The November 22, 2008 race marked the 13th anniversary of the Will Robinson Memorial Run. It was originally organized in 1996 as a way to remember Baldwin County Sheriff’s Deputy Will Robinson (HS 1987), killed in the line of duty December 17, 1995.

The run has become a local family event, but this past year it also drew runners from as far away as Atlanta and Augusta. Awards are given in many categories for individual participants as well as a spirit trophy being awarded to the school that has the most participants. This past year’s race also saw a new tradition begun, with an award added for the top high school runner, who is rewarded with a trophy on which the winner’s name is engraved. The winning school receives a $500 scholarship and “guardianship” of the trophy until the next year’s race. 2009’s race winner will have his name added to the trophy, and the trophy will then reside at that student’s school for the following year.

Following this year’s race, Stacie Stevenson, Georgia Military College Physical Education Teacher, was presented with a token of appreciation for her years of dedication and support of this event. Each year, GMC has had the largest number of students to participate in the race, winning the school spirit trophy thanks to her tremendous efforts. The presentation was made by the Baldwin County Sheriff’s Department and the GMC Alumni Association, co-sponsors of the race.

The money that is raised from this event goes back into the community in three different forms. It goes toward a scholarship for the GMC 1879 Circle of Friends alumni scholarship, to a GMC scholarship in Will Robinson’s name, and to a donation for the CHAMPS program, formerly known as DARE, which is an anti-drug initiative.

Class of 1988 - 20th

JC 1988 attendees Bernard “Bernie” Lindstrom and his wife Cara shared these comments about their 20th reunion. Cara wrote:

“My husband and I just attended the GMC alumni reunion..... it was his 20th. I’d like to express how impressed we were with how much GMC has improved and is continuing to improve. It is absolutely amazing how much has been done even since the 10 year reunion. Both my brother and husband attended the junior college, Class of 1988, and I have always been proud to say where they went to school. My husband continues to serve in the military today, currently as a LTC and commander of the Nashville Corps of Engineers, and he, like most of his classmates still serving, has also served in Iraq and Afghanistan. As a matter of fact some of his classmates could not attend as they are serving today in our war zones overseas.”

Kudos to Ms. Jane Simpson for the DVD on the history of GMC. We are so proud of the traditions kept and future ones made. … All my husband’s fellow soldiers who have gone to West Point proudly display their officer’s sabers. Traditions become the glue that holds it all together sometimes.”

Bernie sent these comments to those of his class for whom he has contact information:

“The Class of ’88 was represented by Paul Drury, Michael Bell, Sam Walden, Greg See, Don Scully and Keith Green. Mike Murrah also attended from the Class of ‘89. We had a wonderful visit as we spent some quality time telling outrageous stories of our time at GMC (fact and fiction). What was also impressive is the progress that the school, Georgia College, and Milledgeville have made. I think we were all impressed with the area’s development and growth. GMC has over 500 prep school students and around 5,500 junior college students with a new barracks, classrooms, renovated Capital Building, and a new gym with an indoor rifle range. … Overall, I was very pleased and would be honored to recommend today’s young folks to attend our GMC.”

HS 1983 Class Agent Tammie Greene wrote:

“I have told all of my classmates that I could find that I really want us to try and come to this event every year! It was SO much fun, we really, really, really enjoyed our time there and didn’t want to leave. Thank you so much for such a special GMC 25 year reunion! I sent the pictures of us to all of the classmates that did not attend or could not attend and they were so jealous that they could not be there and just loved seeing the ones that they could! WE are definitely going to attend every year from now on and are already looking forward to next year so maybe the ones that could not come in 2008 can come this year.”

Tammie also shared that she and two classmates relived a special memory from their time at GMC.

“The first picture is PRICELESS for me! It is Valerie Mobley Fields, Tammie Martin Greene and Gina Mills Kuehn. This is a picture from the parade on Friday afternoon. We were best friends in High School, were cheerleaders and we were the three chosen to be on homecoming court in 1983 and walked out on the football field in this same order! “

The second picture is of all of us downtown Milledgeville on Saturday afternoon! Just a really great picture and one of the only I have as a group! Charles Baxley, Tammie Martin Greene, Nancy Duke Mitchell, Jill Wood Choate, Valerie Mobley Fields, Melinda Martin, Gina Mills Kuehn, Michael Moses, Beth Harrington Walker.

The third picture is our table at the dinner/dance on Saturday evening! Walter Donnelly with wife Lisa Donnelly (HS 1984), Gina Mills Kuehn, Melinda Martin, Jill Wood Choate, Beth Harrington Walker, Valerie Mobley Fields, Keith Kuehn (Gina’s husband) and Tammie Martin Greene.

HS & JC 1973 Class Agents Jim Kjer and Tom Bartlett organized their 35th year reunion to participate in all the planned Alumni Weekend activities but also arranged a private class get-together for reminiscing and storytelling on each other. He reported that a good time was had by all.

HS & JC 1958 Class Agents, Bo Sibilsky (HS), Terry Baggett (JC), and Jack Connell (JC) organized the 50th reunion and also chose to utilize the weekend’s activities as the focal point for their reunion. JC alumni attended events both days and were joined on Saturday evening at the dance by the HS group. (Editorial comment: Observation indicated a good time was had by all. Feedback from several attendees subsequently confirmed it!)
The ’60’s Band Company Class Agents Terry Johnson (JC 1962) and Cliff Owdom (JC 1962) set up their reunion to take advantage of the weekend’s event as well as setting aside time for a private get-together to share their memories and reminisce. A strong rumor had it that the group was going to perform at Saturday’s dance intermission; however, they “stood us up” on that score - maybe next year since the attending Band Company alumni all pledged to come back and to find and bring at least one more member.

Early Commissioning Program (ECP) graduates were officially represented by COL Raymond (Ray) Lacey (JC 1982) whose visit to campus was coordinated by LTC Jay Hallam, GMC Professor of Military Science, such that while COL Lacey attended the weekend’s fun events he also spent some serious time meeting with the MS IV and MS III class to discuss being an officer in today’s Army. COL Lacey talked of his experiences here at GMC as a Cadet, his experiences during two tours at the United States Military Academy (USMA), and his leadership experience commanding the finest Artillery soldiers in the world. He indicated to the Cadets that the two-year experience they have here at GMC rivals that of the four-year USMA experience. He also answered questions from the Cadets and then provided personal experiences of how he was best prepared to be an Army Officier from his time here at GMC.

In his personal feedback, COL Lacey points out that he was “quite impressed with the size of the current ROTC program and the quality of the cadets in the program. The questions being posed to me by GMC cadets during my talk with them and later throughout the weekend were on target and concerned what their roles as LT’s would be, exactly the mindset you want from cadets.”

He also states, “I would tell any graduate that has not been back to GMC lately, in my case it was my first time back since graduation, to get back and see the fantastic changes that have been made. Pictures alone do not do the amount of development justice.”

Lacey goes on to say, “I would also encourage ‘Old Grads’ to see the new barracks complex. I would rate it far better than what currently exists at USMA, a quality structure.”

In touching on the heart of the mission of the ECP Graduates reunion, he shares, “…there are graduates serving our country throughout the United States in critical jobs both in and out of the service, and we should all work harder on networking, both to re-establish old friendships and to also help current cadets learn from us and potentially give current cadets opportunities to work in our organizations during their breaks from school.”

Members of the JC 1988 reunion class essentially attended two reunions since many of them are also ECP graduates, as is Mike Murrah (JC 1989). Many of the ECP graduates who are in other parts of the US and the world were unable to attend because of duty assignments but responded with well wishes to all and the hope to be able to be here at a future Alumni Weekend.

By definition, Barbara Shaheen falls into the “non-traditional student” category. She’s a mother, a grandmother, and a retired small business owner who has decided to return to the classroom after more than 50 years.

But it’s much more than just her age that sets her apart from the “traditional” variety of college students.

Since enrolling at Georgia Military College’s Warner Robins campus, Shaheen has not only embraced the lessons she’s found within the classroom, but has been teaching lessons of her own outside the classroom, demonstrating the importance of supporting one’s school and fellow students.

Because she is over age 62, Shaheen was able to attend any state college or university for free. But Shaheen chose to pay anyway.

She recently established the Barbara Shaheen Scholarship to enable others to attend GMC and further their own education at the campus she so quickly grew to love.

“I started thinking to myself, ‘I’m getting a college education and I’m not paying anything,’” she said. “So, I went to Ted Ramsdell, the director of the campus, and asked if I could do something for another student.”

Shaheen’s request was granted and she went to work alongside the school’s administrators selecting an applicant to receive a $500 scholarship. It was no easy task.

In wading through the applications, Shaheen was given insight into the situations of several of her fellow “non-traditional” students - working mothers taking classes at night, students living below the poverty level and still earning a 4.0 GPA, students from other countries who were ineligible for traditional financial aid.

“I saw so many people that were in need and I knew I just had to give more,” she said. Two additional scholarships for $250 were then approved and recently awarded to two more students.

Kelli Sherwood is one such “non-traditional” student that received a Barbara Shaheen Scholarship. As a single mom trying to juggle going to school full-time and raising her kids, Sherwood said the scholarship has gone a long way to help her financially.

Shaheen also selected a fellow student that had been a help to her personally by tutoring her in Spanish. A native of Brazil, Anna Freire didn’t qualify for scholarships available to many U.S. students and Shaheen felt she was a prime candidate for her scholarship. “I have no words to describe how thankful I am and helpful this scholarship is going to be,” said Freire.

Throughout her life, Shaheen has always felt the need to help others in her community. As a successful small business owner who operated Shaheen Office Supply with her husband Chuck for 30 years and owned Legacy Fine China for 13 years, she now mentors other business owners, representing the Small Business Association as a member of SCORE.

She has been involved extensively with the Warner Robins Chamber of Commerce since moving to the area in 1971, and served several years as an executive director before becoming chairman in 2001.

Civically, she has served her community in many capacities, from the Warner Robins Junior Woman’s Club to the Houston Medical Center Pink Ladies Auxiliary. She sat on the committee that four years ago started the Houston County Volunteer Medical Clinic which serves uninsured employees.

Shaheen even brought a touch of her Lebanese roots to the area in 1973 when she began teaching Middle Eastern Dance to local colleges, which she continued until 2000.

She has been named Chamber Person of the Year in 1986, Woman of the Year by the Business and Professional Women of Warner Robins in 1990, and won Miss Senior Warner Robins in 1995.

In 2007, Shaheen was selected by the Girl Scouts of Middle Georgia as one of five Outstanding Women in 22 counties. On the nomination form, Shaheen ran across a question that set her latest endeavor in motion. “They wanted to know what I regretted not doing,” she said, “and I always regretted not getting a degree.”

Shortly after, Shaheen got another nudge. “I was at Rotary and this minister spoke and he said, ‘If there was ever something you wanted to do, you should just do it,’” she said. “I left there and went and registered for college.”

Shaheen headed to the GMC campus, remembering yet another speaker’s words that had sparked her interest at Rotary- GMC’s President, Major General Peter Boylan. Her two grandchildren Kelly and Joseph Keifer had also taken courses at GMC, so she was already familiar with the quality of the school’s education and staff.

Shaheen unleashed a voracious appetite for learning onto her new school and showed an enthusiasm and determination that surprised many of her teachers.

“I have the best teachers in the world. They cannot believe how much I put into it,” she laughed. “I’m there 24/7, especially when I was taking algebra. I told them I was just going to put a bed there.”

One of GMC’s ad hoc teachers even taught Shaheen’s daughter Donna and her son Chuck in high school and then Chuck’s children Jaqui and Jonny. And now, thirty years later, she’s teaching Shaheen herself.

With small class sizes and personal attention to each student, GMC’s teachers, Shaheen said, have made her feel like part of the GMC family.

She works hard to maintain her high grades, taking advantage of tutoring sessions and spending plenty of time preparing for her classes. Her favorite subjects, she said, are art history, music appreciation and American History, which she slyly admitted was relatively easy since she actually lived some of the history they talked about in class.

Shaheen is definitely making up for lost time, powering through each quarter and continuing on through the summer. In just a few months, she will have earned a general associates degree in a little over two years.

Her son, Chuck, jokes that whenever he tries to get in touch with his mother, she’s either on the way to school, at school or on the way back from school. “The thing I love about it though is that it’s keeping her mind sharp,” he said.

Knowing her determination and fearlessness, there are not many things his mother could do that would surprise him. “I just hope she doesn’t try out for cheerleading,” he laughed. “She may make it.”

But Shaheen seems content with other extracurricular activities, like her seat on the Student Government Association and her new involvement with the scholarship.

Before she’s finished, Shaheen says she plans to give more back to the school that has ignited a new passion in her life in hopes that she can help others follow in her path of redefining the “non-traditional student.”

“I saw so many people that were in need and I knew I just had to give more.”

Making a Difference in the Lives of Others

Instituted in 2004 to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the founding of Georgia Military College, the 1879 Circle of Friends provides scholarships to deserving prep school as well as junior college students.

One hundred percent of every donation goes to provide GMC scholarships for children and/or grandchildren of GMC alumni. The scholarships are awarded each year to students who have the potential for academic success and wish to attend GMC, but require financial assistance in order to do so. Because of the commitment of alumni and friends, the Alumni Scholarship Endowment has grown from $1,000 to more than $34,000 since 2004.

Both alumni and friends of GMC are welcome to become members. While gifts of any size are welcome, membership is awarded and maintained with a tax-deductible donation of $18.79 or more during each fiscal year (July 1 - June 30) to the 1879 Circle of Friends.

More than 94 Alumni and friends who have supported this fund continue to make a difference in lives year after year through their gifts.

Georgia Power Scholarship

Recipient: Teresa Brown

Georgia Military College recently awarded Teresa Brown the Georgia Power Scholarship for Winter Quarter 2009. Ms. Brown is a freshman from Eatonton, Ga., pursuing a degree in nursing. She stated, “This scholarship means so much to me. It not only helps me with my financial obligations, but makes me feel proud to have others believe in my dream of furthering my education. I hope to inspire other non-traditional students to do the same.”

The Georgia Power Scholarship Fund was established in 1999. The fund is available for non-traditional students who wish to attend college, and have been out of high school a year or more. This scholarship provides an opportunity for students who may otherwise not have the chance to attend college.

On Saturday, December 6 the Georgia Military College Steinway Concert Series presented the Mercer University Children’s Choir Holiday Concert.

Founded in September of 2005, the Mercer University Children’s Choir is a community arts initiative of the Townsend-McAfee Institute for Sacred Music Studies. The Institute is one of two centers of excellence in Mercer University’s Townsend School of Music.

The Mercer University Children’s Choir, directed by Dr. John E. Simons, involves 75 singers in two auditioned choirs. The Preparatory Choir (ages 7-9) is a training choir performing a limited number of concerts in Middle Georgia, and helping young singers develop healthy singing and performance skills. The Touring Choir (ages 9-15) is a performance choir that sings throughout Georgia and conducts an annual out-of-state concert tour. The singers learn to read music, use proper vocal technique, develop creativity, form healthy relationships, and give an artistic fit to the community.

The music department at Mercer University has been most generous in their contributions toward creating wonderful evenings of peaceful reflection on the rolling landscape of the GMC Main Campus. The end of 2008 brought the beautiful voices of children singing: members of the Touring Choir (ages 9-15), a part of the Mercer University Children’s Choir and a community arts initiative of the Townsend-McAfee Institute for Sacred Music Studies. Directed by Dr. John E. Simons, the group celebrated the season of joy, lifting their voices in harmony and moving the audience with their gifts of song.

“Joy, sorrow, tears, lamentation, laughter -- to all these music gives voice, but in such a way that we are transported from the world of unrest to a world of peace, and see reality in a new way, as if we were sitting by a mountain lake and contemplating hills and woods and clouds in the tranquil and fathomless water.” -- Albert Schweitzer (1875-1965) Musician, philosopher and physician
Under the evening stars on a winter night in February, the world as it seemed faded into the melodies of Stravinsky, Bach and Vivaldi. The rhythms and majestic sounds of music echoed in the Goldstein Center for the Performing Arts once again, as renowned violinist Robert McDuffie and the Mercer University Center for Strings Orchestra performed a special concert as part of the GMC Foundation’s Steinway Concert Series.

Mr. McDuffie’s passion for music was evident as well as his prodigious energy toward mentoring and showcasing the talents of musicians from the Center for Strings, which he founded in Macon at Mercer University. While not teaching music, McDuffie tours the globe. He has appeared as soloist with most of the major orchestras of the world, including the New York and Los Angeles Philharmonics, the Chicago, San Francisco, Atlanta, and Toronto Symphonies, the Frankfurt Radio Orchestra, Orchestra del Teatro alla Scala, Santa Cecilia Orchestra of Rome, Orquesta Sinfonica Nacional de Mexico, and all of the major orchestras of Australia.

Music is the movement of sound to reach the soul for the education of its virtue.
- Plato

“We continue to provide access to the arts and the forthcoming concerts are a wonderful means of elevating the souls of our students,” noted MG Peter J. Boylan, GMC president. “The music of world class violinist Robert McDuffie and the inspiring Macon Symphony are part of this year’s repertoire. We owe this in part to the generosity and passion of the Steinway Society, who, in most respects, shoulder the tasks associated with procuring these talented artists. We are profoundly grateful to them.”

The mission of the Steinway Society is to provide funding for the Steinway Concert Series as well as for ongoing technical support of the Steinway Concert Grand Piano in the Goldstein Center for the Performing Arts, the purchase of which has been the group’s crowning achievement.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Steinway Society, please send your annual gift to the GMC Foundation, 201 E. Greene St., Milledgeville, GA 31061, designating it for the Steinway Concert Series.
A large ribbon cutting ceremony took place on the site of the Fairburn Educational Complex on Tuesday, November 18, 2008. The Atlanta campus of GMC celebrated its move from their Union City campus, where they spent the past ten years, to their new location in Fairburn, GA, as the first occupant with over 23,000 square feet of classroom and office space. The modern complex was designed with a vintage feel in order to fit the historic nature of downtown Fairburn and is located at 320 West Broad Street.

Although it was a chilly November morning, over 400 guests were in attendance. GMC representatives giving speeches included President MG Peter Boylan, Allyson Savage who is a 16-year-old dual enrollment student, Rashad Ford who is currently serving as the president of the SGA, and Yvonne Quince who is the oldest student attending school at the Atlanta site. State Senator Ronnie Chance from District 16 also gave a speech noting the importance of this educational endeavor by the city of Fairburn to bring higher education to the citizens of their community. It was their vision that enabled the 10 million dollar project to proceed. It includes two retail buildings and an additional classroom building for other follow-on institutions.

GMC Cadet Corps students traveled to participate in the ceremony. They officially presented the colors for the first time at the new site and delighted the guests as they demonstrated their rifle skills. Music was provided by the local elementary, middle, and high school students.

Special attendees included the Fairburn Mayor, City Council, and members of the Development Authority. Local politicians and community leaders from throughout the South Fulton County area and from the nearby cities also attended. Georgia Military College was also honored to have Mr. W.J. Usery, Jr, an alumnus and long-time supporter of GMC. Mr. James Price, the former Director of the Atlanta campus, and several former professors for GMC Atlanta were also in attendance.

The Atlanta campus of GMC has approximately 550 students and with the move to Fairburn, can now accommodate about 300 more. The new campus will allow for future growth and has been designed for two more 18,000 sq. ft. academic buildings. Georgia Military College is proud to continue to be a part of the South Fulton Family. The move to Fairburn will allow them the space to continue to grow.

Georgia Military College has undergone a Renaissance in the last decade and it is evident everywhere you look. The Old Capitol Building is one of the historical anchors in Middle Georgia but it is far more than just a museum because it holds in its old walls offices and classrooms and is in use every day by faculty, administrators, and, most importantly, GMC's students.

Along with the physical improvements that are so visible there are other substantive changes that are of an academic nature. In order to bring some of those in to focus we only have to look at the history department over the last three years. An example of the major improvements in the history classes is the recent Study Abroad opportunity for students taking one of the World Civilization courses. Assistant Prof Rob Sherwood conceived, planned and recently conducted a class in Geneva, Switzerland, that was the educational highlight for the students on the trip. Although the class was composed of GMC Milledgeville students the bulk of the class occurred in Geneva and included side trips to numerous cities in Switzerland, and a two day visit to Paris, France.

Another recently developed opportunity for history students involves a trip to Savannah as part of the Georgia History class taught by Assistant Professor Mary Helen Davis. Professor Davis and the students depart Milledgeville early on a Friday morning and arrive in Savannah for a full day of trolley tours and exploring Georgia’s original colonial city. The night presents an opportunity for the students to go on a ghost tour in one of America’s most haunted cities. Saturday morning has the students up early and going to Fort Pulaski for a guided tour of the fort and nearby Tybee Island.

The Chair of Social and Behavioral Sciences, Edward Shelor, said, “GMC has developed an environment that allows top-notch teachers to expand classroom offerings and enlarge our student-centered approach to education. I’m very proud of the accomplishments of Mary Helen and Rob and the results have reflected a rather impressive 65% increase in enrollment in history classes at GMC Milledgeville over the last three years. Coupled with a student-centered approach, relatively small class sizes, and the technology in our classrooms an increased demand for history classes is the natural outcome.”
As more than one million people traveled to Washington, D.C. to witness the inauguration of the nation’s 44th president, Barack Obama, eight GMC students took part in events that will be embedded in their lives as memories of living history. John Austin Vance, Taey Wright, Colby Pennington, Sean Tighe, Kevin Kotrick, Ayres Wimberly, Delarrion Milner and Jamarcus Jarrett all attended the inauguration either with family or through school-related organizations.

Witnessing History

By Sean Tighe, GMC Prep student

Only a few days ago, I had the opportunity of a lifetime. I was surrounded by nearly two million of my closest friends witnessing an event that occurs every four years.

It was not the Olympics, the World Cup, or Feb. 29; it was the Presidential Inauguration of Barack Obama.

Every four years, Jan. 20 is a day that America exemplifies its democratic form of government through a peaceful transfer of power. It is always a historic occasion in which the nation is presented its new leader in a simple yet moving ceremony. This inauguration, however, would be different from the other 54 in America’s history. America would have its first African-American president.

Standing on the National Mall, there was a feeling of anticipation. Everyone was waiting for the swearing-in ceremony to begin. With each passing second, history was creeping closer. Finally, after hours in the freezing cold, the man of the hour came up to the podium. Everyone on the Mall cheered and furiously waved their American flags. At that moment, I realized that history was about to occur. President-elect Obama placed his left hand on Abraham Lincoln’s Bible, lifted his right hand, and recited the Presidential Oath of Office. Once he lowered his right hand, he was no longer the President-elect; he was now President Obama.

In the nation’s capitol, nearly two million people erupted into joy. The atmosphere was incredibly emotional, as everyone on the National Mall once again broke out into a flag-waving frenzy. The United States opened a new chapter in its history with Barack Obama holding the torch and leading the way.

Hundreds of years from now, Jan. 20, 2009, will be regarded as a momentous day in American history, and I will be able to say that I was there.

The Presidential Youth Inaugural Conference (PYIC) featured speeches by Doris Kearns Goodwin, author of Team of Rivals, Lisa Ling, General Colin Powell and Archbishop Desmond Tutu. I enjoyed all of their speeches; each was inspirational about having dreams and striving to achieve them. During the conference we also attended the Inauguration Opening Ceremony and saw performances by U2, Stevie Wonder, Garth Brooks, and Beyonce.

On Inauguration Day, the walk to the National Mall amazed me. There were well over two million people there, yet there was not a single push nor a single shove. Everyone was in harmony and was happy. It was amazing. I stood at fairly far back in the crowd, near the third JumboTron (large video screen); not very close at all. I stood in the same spot for about three hours before the inauguration began. Obama’s speech was amazing. He is one of the best presidential speakers ever, in my opinion.

The PYIC ended with a gala, and I was able to reunite with my classmates from GMC. All in all, PYIC was a very enlightening experience and I am glad I was able to witness history. The speakers were very inspiring and I am glad I was able to attend such an experience. — John Austin Vance
Remembering My Brother ... a True American Hero

Ken Wheat names Ruark Athletic Center Lobby to honor his brother, Larry Wheat

On the heels of a $125,000 commitment to Georgia Military College’s junior college football program, alumnus Ken Wheat (HS ’68), of Columbia, S.C., has chosen to name the lobby of the Ruark Athletic Center in honor of his late brother Larry Wheat.

Wheat’s gift will create a $25,000 scholarship endowment for junior college football student athletes and will provide $100,000 in discretionary funds over a five-year period in support of the junior college football program. In addition, Wheat has donated $7,500 for the purchase of travel suits for junior college football student athletes.

“GMC was so important to Larry,” said Wheat. He described his brother as “a model GMC student,” who graduated near the top of “Education, discipline and heart mixed in with effort equals success. That is why I am giving back today and it is true that, ‘For it is in giving that we receive.’” his class in both high school in 1966 and junior college in 1968. He received his 2LT bars on the steps of the Old Capitol Building and went into the army immediately afterward.

A display in the lobby will honor Larry Wheat and will also highlight All-American designees in all college sports. “The lobby display will honor all Georgia Military College All-American designees from the junior college since its first honoree, Parnell Ruark,” said Bert Williams, GMC Athletic Director. “I think it is especially fitting to have the lobby named in honor of a true All-American like Larry Wheat, a gentleman who served his country in Vietnam, sacrificing his health and eventually his life for our country.”

The dedication ceremony was held at 9 a.m. on Oct. 25 in the lobby of the Ruark Athletic Center.
The 2008 GMC Junior College Bulldog football team yet again set another standard of excellence when 19 of their student athletes were awarded scholarships to play football at the next level. Because of their hard work and discipline on the football field and in the classroom, these individuals have provided themselves with the opportunity to continue their education and athletic endeavors at different institutions of higher education throughout the country. These Bulldogs helped the 2008 team finish the season with a 9-2 record, and a #9 NJCAA ranking nationally. They also finished their careers at GMC with an 18-4 record, two post-season bowl appearances, and two top 10 final season rankings. In addition to the 2008 outgoing signing class, this 2009 class marks 38 individuals who have signed Division 1 scholarships over the last two years. The 19 individuals who are continuing on are listed below:

- Tony Straughter: 1st Team J.C. Grid-Wire All-American Linebacker
- Jakar Hamilton: 1st Team NJCAA All-American Free Safety
  NJCAA Defensive Player of the Year Runner-up
- Rokevious Watkins: 1st Team NJCAA All-American Offensive Line
- Steven Robinson: 2nd Team NJCAA All-American Running Back
- Torrey Ball: 2nd Team NJCAA All-American Defensive Lineman
- Calvin West: Honorable Mention NJCAA All-American Linebacker

The 2008 GMC Junior College Bulldogs football team once again had a fruitful campaign by finishing 9-2, ranked #9 in the nation, and playing in a post-season bowl game. Also, there were several individuals who garnered post-season honors for their superlative play on the field. In all, six student-athletes earned All-American honors. These prestigious awards are voted on by junior college coaches throughout the United States. Within the junior college ranks there are two post-season All-American lists. The National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) All-American list consists of all the institutions (70) that play football except the California junior colleges. The J.C. Grid-Wire All-American list consists of all the junior colleges including California (over 140) institutions that play football. In turn, to be named on these lists is a prestigious honor. Below you will see the GMC student-athletes that made the distinguished title of All-American:
'42  Parnell Ruark  (HS 1942, JC 1949) was one of three individuals inducted into the Minor League Baseball Hall of Fame on August 23, 2008 in Moultrie, Ga. Ruark was either manager or interim manager for four of the six years he played baseball. He played 648 games and has a lifetime batting average of 322. His record includes 805 hits for 1400 total bases, scoring 535 times and amassing 574 RBIs. (Ruark’s photo dates back to his tenure as coach at GMC during the mid-sixties.)

'53  MAJ James Patterson  (HS 1953, JC 1955) and his wife, Fran, have been traveling to beautiful places and shared this photo taken in Madera, Portugal from their recent trip abroad.

'61  Charles W. Leggette  (JC 1961) was named Alumnus of the Year; Georgia Southern, 2007.

'65  Charles D. Sikes  (HS 1965, JC 1967) and Jason Jones  (JC 1993) met on assignment in Baghdad, Iraq.
